ACTIVITIES—PAGE 36

ATHLETICS—PAGE 62

On September 5, 1960, a dream finally was reality

New Warren Central opened its doors.

Old friends and traditions were transferred,

A challenge came hand-in-hand with this change—

A challenge to establish new traditions,

Standards to guide all students who will enter.

Appreciative Warrenites recognized the change

And the challenges which demanded their best efforts.

WITH CHANGE COMES CHALLENGE

ADMINISTRATION—PAGE 86

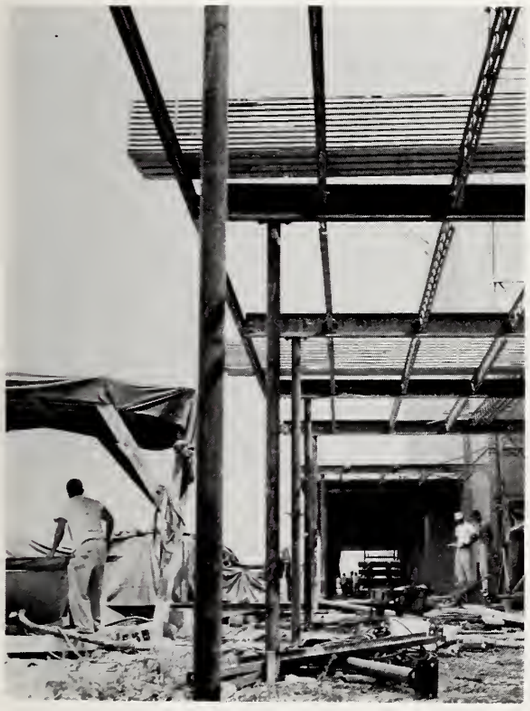
THE CHANGE

The Biggest Change—

When the cafeteria opened in late autumn, pupils scurried to lunch via the mall. As colder weather advanced, the outside entrance was abandoned in favor of the more convenient inner corridor.

Participating in the ground-breaking ceremony were Messrs. George Yotter, Edward Cuddy, Everett Brown, Robert Anderson, Austin Walker, Norman Hilkene, Wayne Foster and John Porter.

New Buildings—New Campus—New Location



A new location, a spacious, modern high school,

More laboratories, larger classrooms.

The Warren teenager finds facilities for all his needs.

Old Warren exists only in memory.

The enthusiasm of youth now spills into the new building—

Forever to stand as a tribute to a community,

One which recognized the desperate need for change.

In the summer of 1960, men were working feverishly to complete construction of the school so that students could enter for the first semester.

The academic section of the new multi-million dollar Warren Central stood ready to receive its first pupils—pupils who were inspired with pride and awe.

When the lights of Warren's gym are turned on, it's almost like watching the sun rise. Nearly 15 minutes are required for the mercury vapor lights to reach full brilliance.

Gymnasium and Cafeteria Were Educational,

Gary Meunier stops to fill his glass at one of the two conveniently located water coolers in the cafeteria.

As the eleven o'clock bell sounded, Warrenites poured through inside and outside doors into the new green, gold and coral cafeteria.

A separate faculty dining room, located off the main cafeteria, allowed teachers to have their noon breaks, too.

No loud cheers resounded from the walls of the new 4,500 seat gymnasium this year, but underclassmen awaited the opening of next year's basketball season to see the first game played in the huge area.

Unique design will allow physical education directors to schedule four classes at once, two on the upper levels and two on the floor itself. Locker and shower rooms for boys and girls combine with offices, a Teen Canteen center and maintenance facilities to provide Warren with one of the finest gyms in this area.

Janice Croucher, Dave Archer, Floyd Kirby and Mike Davis participated in the Dramatics Club play in the cafeteria.

Entertainment Centers

Dennis Richardson and Don Rardon hurry through the cafeteria serving lines choosing their lunch from the menu provided by the Federal Lunch Program.

After finishing lunch, Marjorie Wilson and Donna Whiteside place their trays on the conveyor.

Talented Musicians Found Their Own Facilities

Sharon Hinchman selects her flute from the storage room. When musical instruments are not in use, they are stored by band and orchestra members.

The band, choir and orchestra rooms, two storage areas, uniform room, music library and six practice rooms of the new music suites are a far cry from the old Rooms 16 and 9!

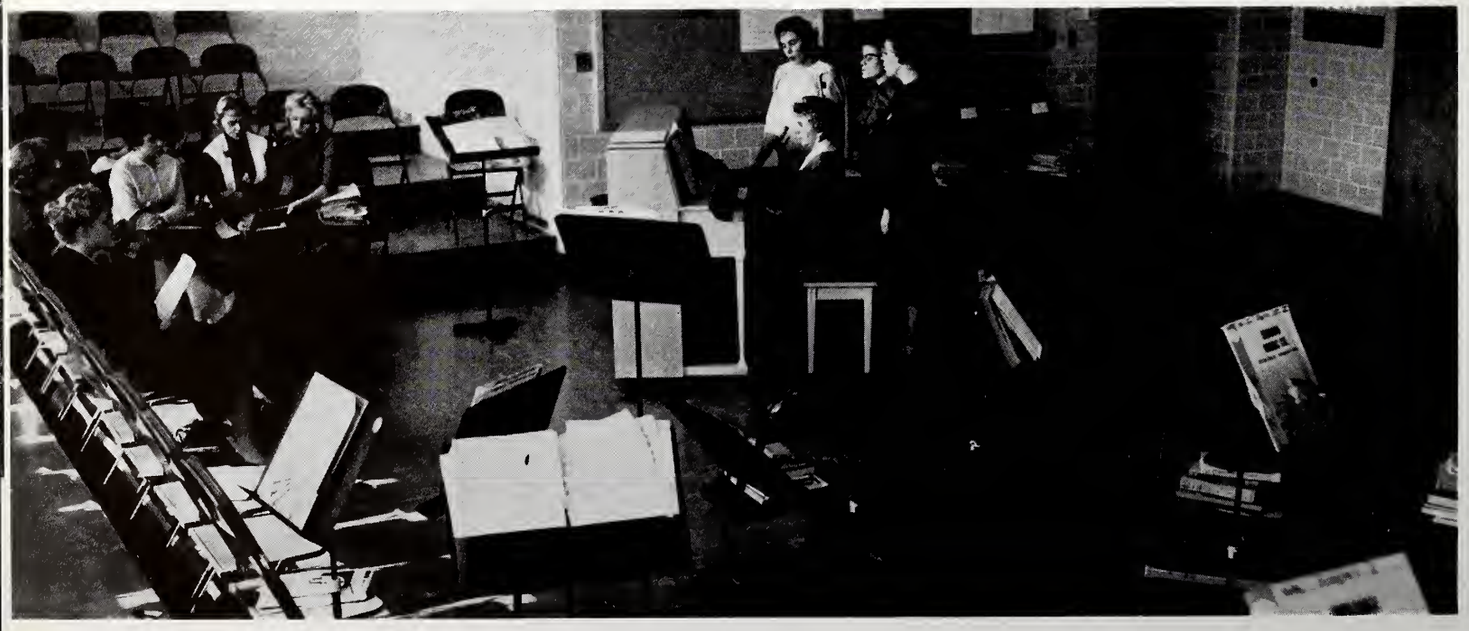
Students wanting vocal or instrumental music, and solo and ensemble work found ample facilities to further their careers or hobbies.

Although the C. E. Eash Auditorium was not in use until Christmas, it was the scene of many activities after that. Convocations, pep sessions, special club meetings, movies, plays, musical concerts and baccalaureate were there.

The 900-seat auditorium was constructed for nearly perfect acoustics. It was decorated in a green and brown color combination with carpeted aisles. The auditorium lent Warrenites all the facilities of a Broadway theater. The girls' and boys' dressing rooms, costume storage and properties room were first used by drama students in the senior play, "Charley's Aunt."

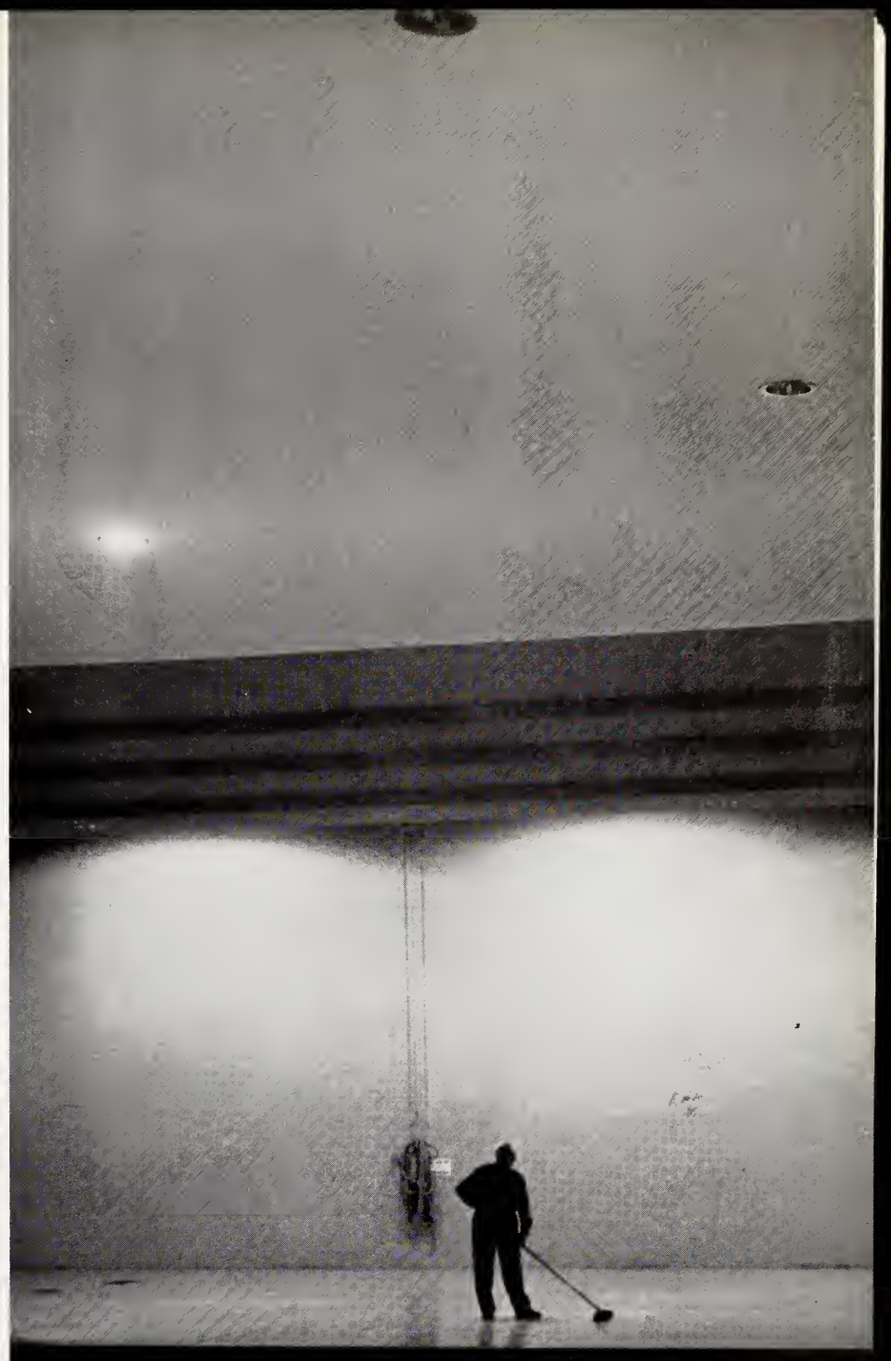
For the many convocation speakers and programs, student lighting technicians learned to operate the spotlights, flood lights and other lighting controls backstage.

Treble Tones rehearse with Mrs. Robert Roesner for the state solo and ensemble contest in one of the two sound-proof music rooms. Facilities of these rooms are of the latest design and engineering.



in Auditorium Area

Lighting the stage with various shades of color, the switchboard is one of the most essential aspects of the new auditorium. This device changes the color of the lights according to the mood and purpose of the performance and it also controls all other lighting in the auditorium.



After a rousing convocation, nothing but the rhythmic sweeps of the janitor's broom from upstage can be heard in the abandoned auditorium.

AND THE CHALLENGE

A monument to educational supremacy sprawls over broad acres

Its steel and brick and concrete give form to the great challenge

"Learn, grow, mature, work, laugh—here."

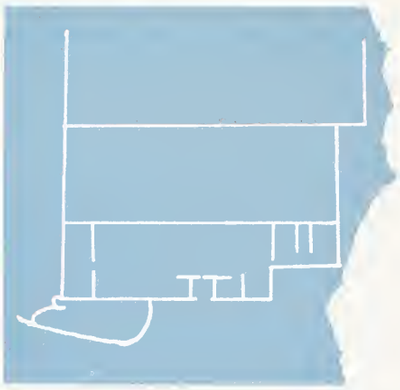
And so the student walks with pride and awe, yet humbly,

For four years this magnificent building is his to utilize, to serve.

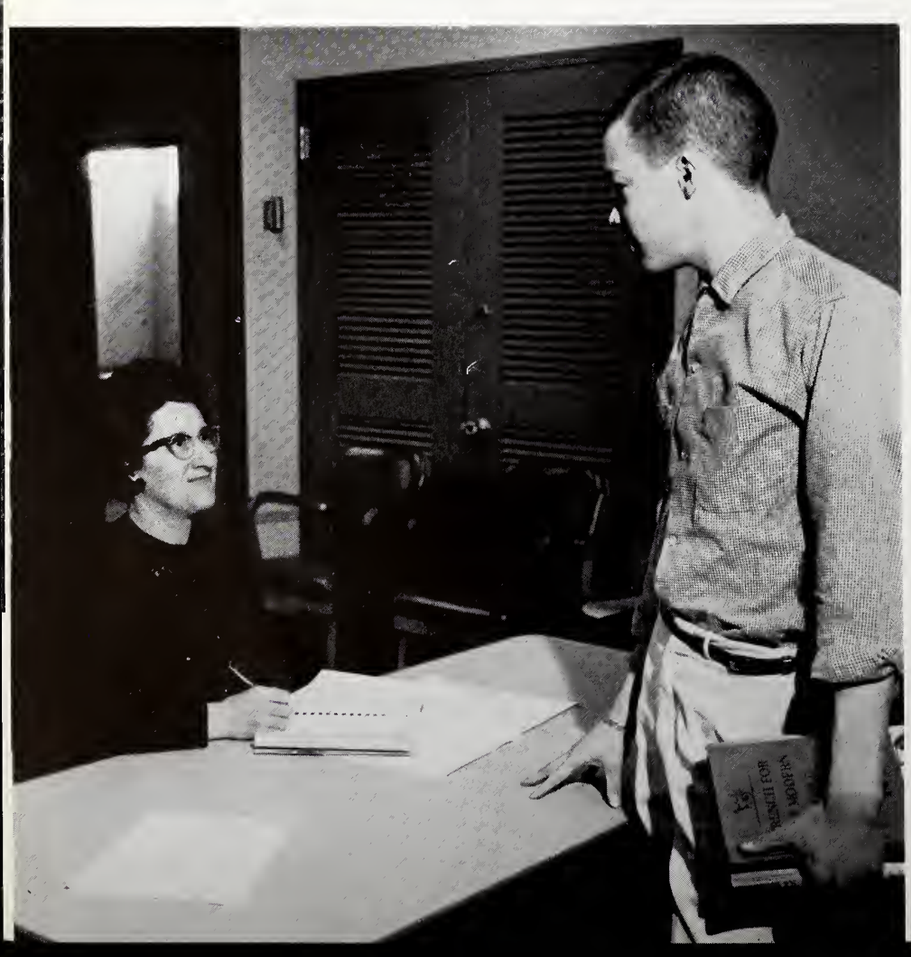
Is he capable of accepting this challenge?

Is he wise enough to appreciate the proffered guidance?

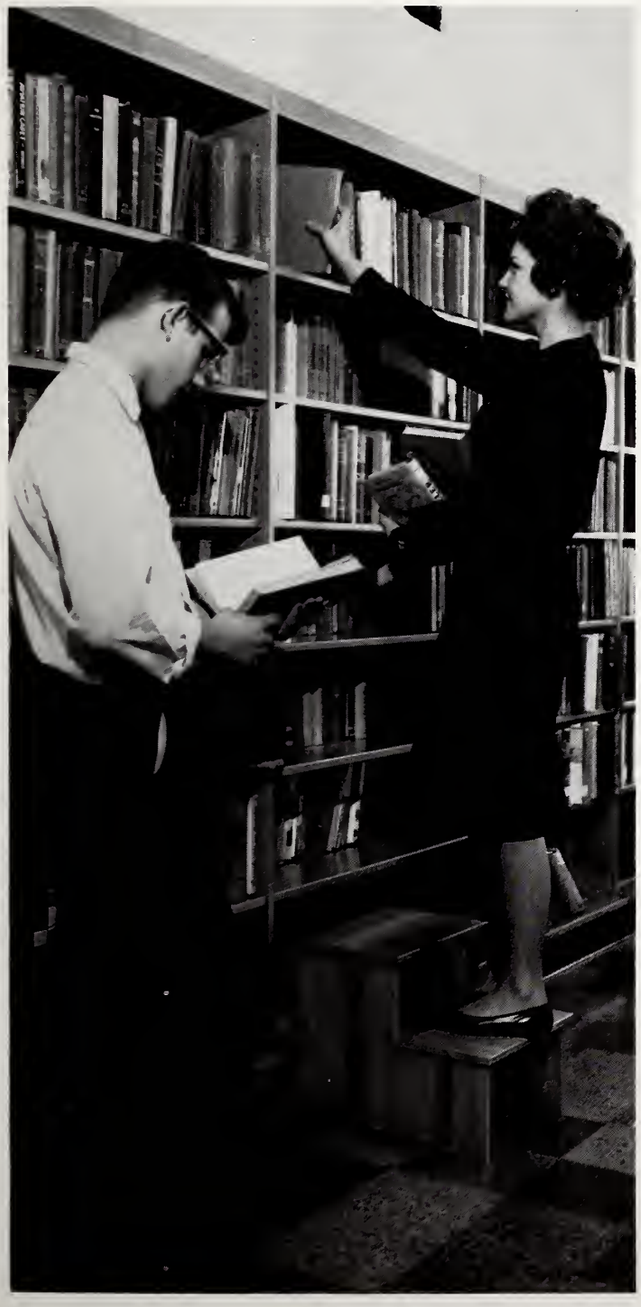
Only the passing of fall to spring, of sophomore to senior will tell.



Mr. Clifford Gates, counsellor for the junior class, aids Donna Cherry in planning her schedule for the coming year.



Will Lamm, junior, makes an appointment for consultation at the receptionist's desk in the guidance center. He is aided by Mrs. Clarice Means, sophomore counsellor.

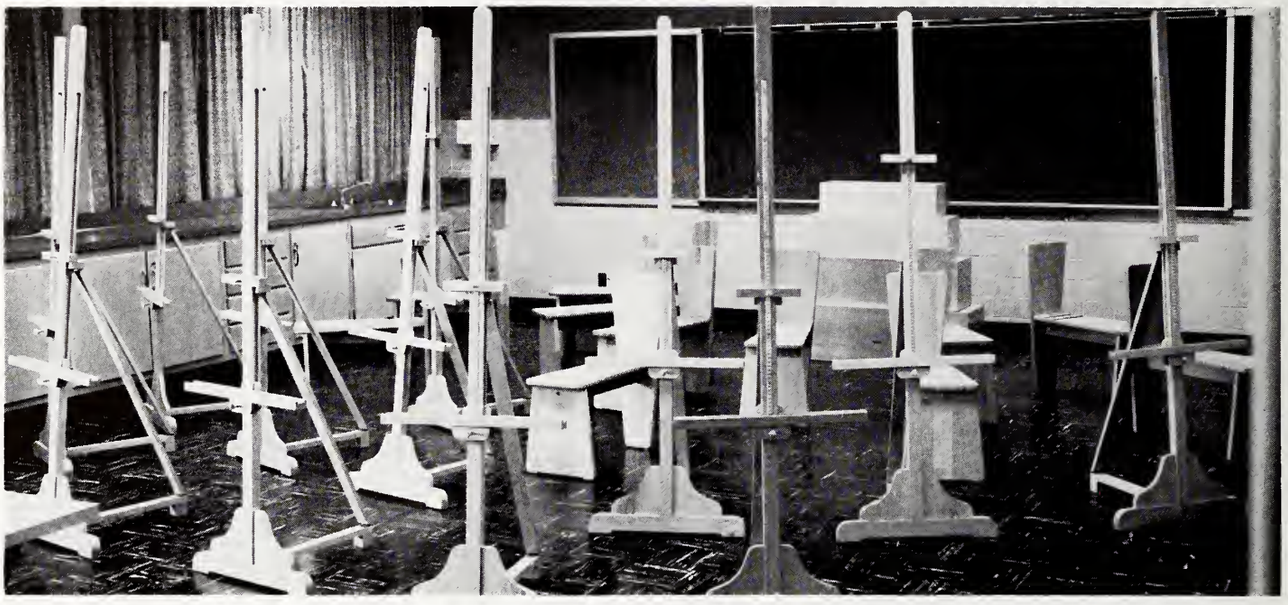


Carol Hunt, library assistant, shelves books as Larry Rigsbee surveys the stock of assembled books. All volumes in the library are organized by the Dewey Decimal System.

Gwynne Bujarsky uses the card catalog to aid her in locating sources of information for her English research paper.

Jim Handlon, library assistant, aids Ron Waltz, junior, as he checked out a book on advanced chemistry.

Creativity Was Fostered by Departments for



Standing ready to be moved into the new art area are the new easels and posing benches headed for the fine arts rooms. Although the year was nearly over before this suite could be used, it promised many serviceable years.

Working toward the dedication of the new building Harriett Fitch, Jim Pope and Randy Toler paint murals and signs for the April 28 Dedication Day.

Pupils in art classes were constantly beseiged to put their talents to practical use in the making of posters, decorating for dances and programs and planning displays for bulletin boards. The art suite, composed of an arts and crafts room, a fine arts section, a storage area and an off-stage properties room, made all these projects possible.

Pottery wheels, ceramic kilns, easels and sketching stools were used by Warren boys and girls to further their interest in art. This area was complete with Formica work space and sinks for clean-up.

Industrial arts teachers utilized their spacious new wing to teach the fundamentals of tools and habits of safety necessary for boys interested in machine, wood or print shop or drafting. Thousands of square feet and thousands of dollars were invested in these rooms which feature only the finest and most modern equipment.

Courses to be added to the curriculum include Transportation, Electronics and Graphic Arts.

Industrial and Fine Arts

Jack White cleans and oils his machine in preparation for another project in his machine shop course.

Ralph Brown, Roy Crompton and Roger Tutterrow work at their lathes in wood shop. During the second semester projects are displayed for the student body.

Jeff Perkins operates the new Linotype machine.

Mr. Larry Smith conducted classes in architectural drafting in the industrial arts wing. Two types of desks are provided for drafting classes — one has an adjustable working board, and the other has an adjustable height.

Agriculture & Home Economics Prepared Pupils for

Wilber Schakel, Fred Palmer, Phil Fidler, Gene Huffman, Bill Schwier and Johnny Wilson examine a soil testing apparatus as Mr. Vonn Hayes explains the taking of a sample for testing purposes.

Ronnie VanLue demonstrates to his class the Techniques of Livestock Care. Also working on this project was Larry Franke. Demonstrations form a major part of the agriculture curriculum.

Working closely with 4-H clubs, boys enrolled in Agriculture progressed to state and even national levels with their demonstrations and projects. Grand champion county demonstrator was Howard Poole. Also highly rated were Jon Means, Ronnie VanLue, Larry Franke and Dave Clark.

Their own room, the agriculture area, is located in the Industrial Arts wing, and is completely equipped with work, classroom and storage space. Instruction and practice were offered in both the vocational and avocational phases of farm living and science.

Agriculture and Home

In preparing girls for their most important vocation, the Home Economics Department sought also to give its girls a greater knowledge in skills and a greater appreciation of the many phases of homemaking in society.

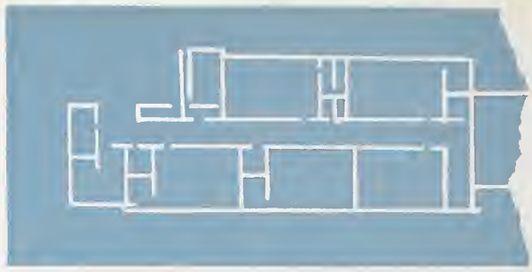
In addition to the required foods and home nursing courses the department also offered advanced courses in housing and home management, clothing and family living.

The foods division consisted of a laboratory with seven kitchens, one for demonstration purposes. The demonstration kitchen with small appliances and built-in ranges provided a practical lecture area. The room is complete with a foods library.

The clothing laboratory has outlets for 32 machines and counter-work area. The lay-out area is provided with an under-the-counter-storage cabinet, and separate fitting room which contains a three-way mirror.

Home economics teacher Mrs. Ita Richardson shows Janet Veteto how to clean the burners on the new ranges.

Sewing the hem in a full Mexican skirt are Linda Rutheford and Mary Martin. The long cutting boards are a part of the counter space used for pinning and cutting fabric.

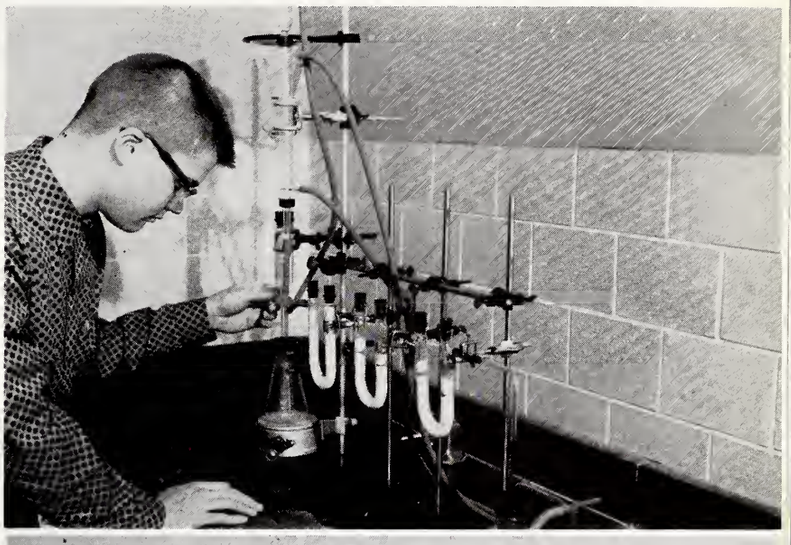


Earphones and Tapes Aided Language Study

Students experience and learn by using the new foreign language laboratory equipment. The laboratory, new to Warren, provided a more effective method for foreign language teachers to evaluate each student's individual progress.

Mr. Rolland Sprunger, science instructor, demonstrates rather explosively the use of a fire extinguisher in physics class to Stevie Woempner, Harriet Fitch, Bob Ferguson and Sharon Hinchman.

Jack Chaney, chemistry assistant, uses one of the new pieces of equipment in the chemistry laboratory while he works on his CO_2 determination from limestone experiment.



Mike Chaney works with an oscilloscope, an instrument for showing changes in varying current.

The new Laboratory was the main feature of the Foreign Language Department. It enabled students to learn a language more fluently, master the phonetic drills and hear native voices. It is equipped with the Dukane teacher console and 30 booths for students where each may listen and record his work in private or participate in recitation with the class.

Two years of Latin, Spanish and French were offered to any student interested in learning a foreign language.

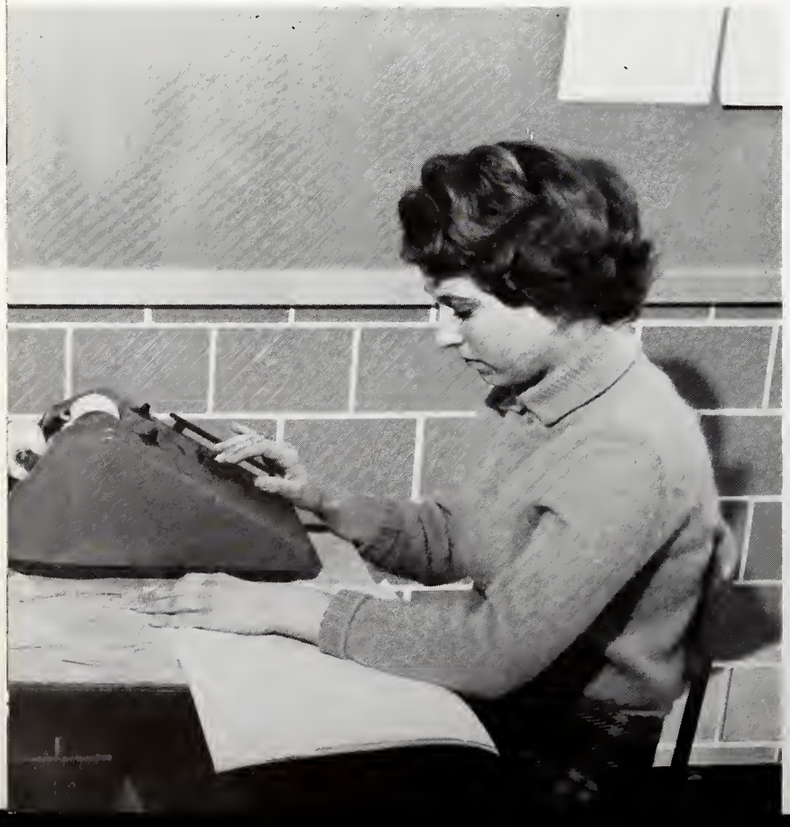
Members of the Science Department had as their goal the increasing of knowledge and appreciation of the universe. In this fast-moving atomic age, an understanding of the principles of modern science is a necessity.

Eight rooms in the east wing were devoted to the study of science. The biology, chemistry and physics laboratories and practical science rooms were equipped with water, gas and electrical outlets, while the biology areas had aquariums and mobile terrariums. One biology class had a television set for participation in the Midwest Airborne Television education program.

Business and College Careers Will

Myra Mears pauses to calculate her speed on one of the new electric typewriters. These machines are used in second year typing courses.

Dixie Frazier works with the adding machine in her business math class.



Billie Osborne listens attentively as Mrs. Mary Jane Deer demonstrates the operation of the switchboard in the main office.

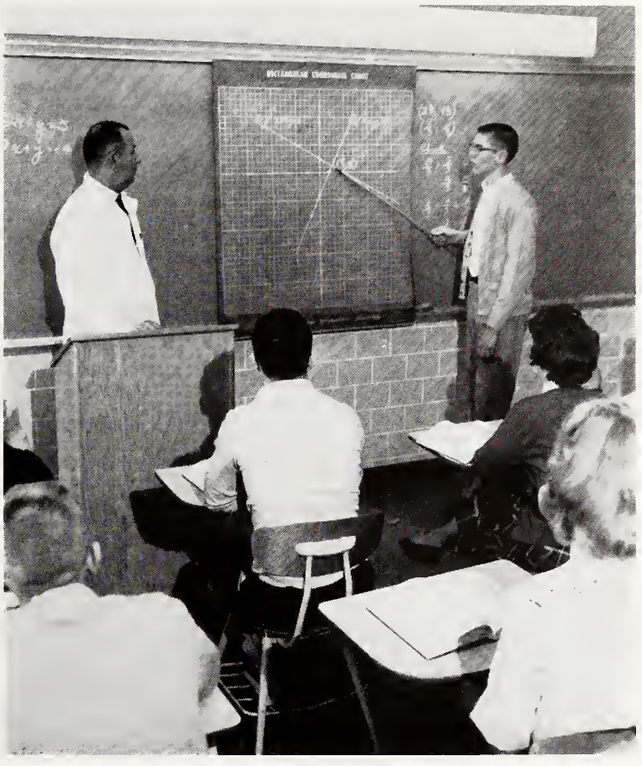
Depend upon Commerce and Mathematics

Warren's business education department, located in the upper main corridor, was created to instill the ability to compete in the business and education world. The department is equipped with electric typewriters, adding machines, switchboards, manual typewriters and duplication machines.

Included in the course selection are shorthand, typing, business arithmetic, bookkeeping and office practice.

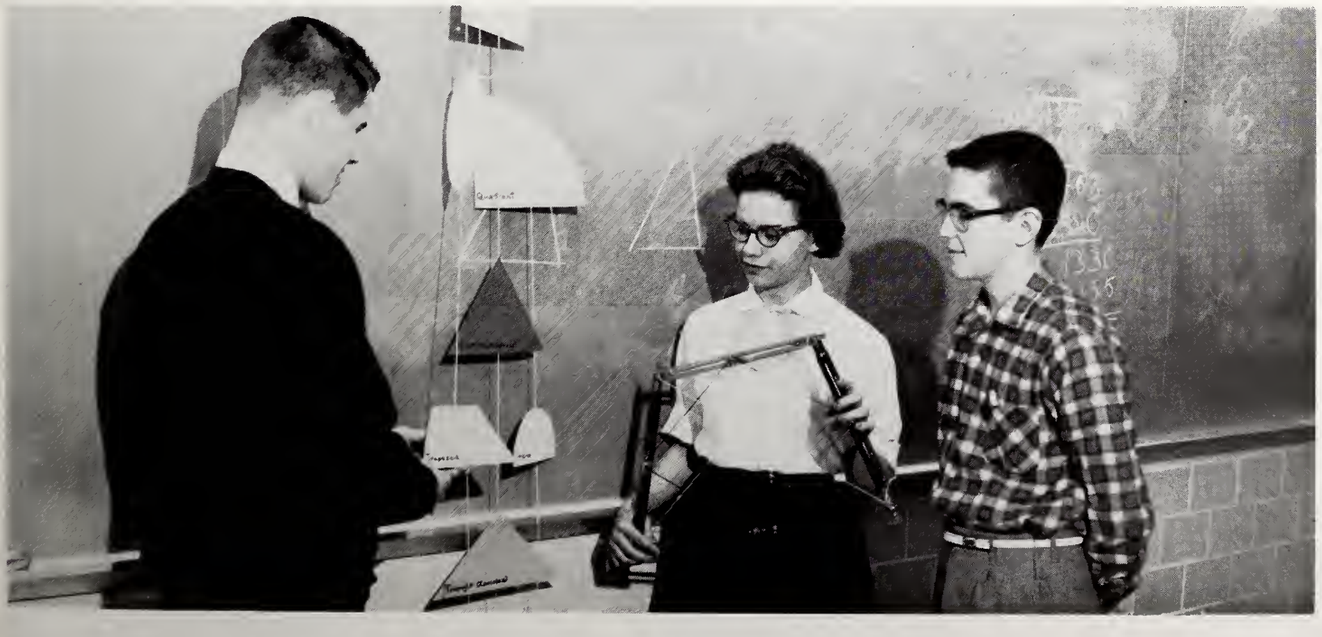
In the 1960-61 school year, 38 percent of Warren's students were enrolled in an advanced mathematics course. As a part of the college preparatory course, mathematics lays a foundation in algebra, geometry, trigonometry and basic calculus. Twenty-two students were studying a fifth year of math.

Occupying four rooms in the east wing, the department is equipped with charts, geometric solids and slide rules for classroom demonstrations. The department's office is provided with a typewriter having special mathematical symbols.



Mr. Ray Clark uses a demonstration chart to illustrate to his senior mathematics class the solution of a graphic problem.

Examining geometric forms may prove to be of value to Ted Leisure, Pat McEowen and Rick Mathes in understanding theorems and solving problems.



Brian Livingston and Sharon Laughner work in reading laboratory to accelerate their reading rate and to develop their comprehension. During the year time was taken from English classes for the reading program.

Reading Lab and

Dale Totten and Claudia Gastineau, English literature students, study the features of the model of the Globe Theater.

As election returns roll in Shirley Wilson posts results on a chart in government class.

Mr. Charles Trees uses the overhead projector to emphasize vital points in his lectures. Here he traces the route taken by the Crusaders.

Television Were Featured in Academic Wing

The basic fundamental of creative living is the ability to communicate. The English Department sought to develop this talent through grammar, composition, speech, literature and developmental reading classes.

Existing to enrich the reading skills of students with varied abilities was a reading laboratory furnished with $5,700 worth of equipment. Sophomores were given an introductory course of two weeks, while juniors and seniors received six weeks of instruction.

The Social Studies Department worked toward the development of future citizens in a democratic society. To carry out this task, the department includes in its curriculum the following subjects: United States government, state and local government, United States history, world history, international relations, sociology, world geography, economics, and family living.

Physical features include these visual aids: complete sets of United States and world history maps, geographical maps of continents, an overhead projector, a mimeoscope and two televisions.

Television has become a familiar sight to social studies pupils. Major events of the election, the inauguration and the presidential speeches were televised.

An Indiana State Police display featured photographs of automobile accidents furthering their campaign for safe driving. Keith Jung and Erica Lahr are among the many Warrenites who stopped to look.

Newspapers, Cars

Thirty some sophomores and a few juniors enrolled in beginning journalism because they wanted to work on the newspaper, the yearbook or the News Bureau.

The change to a new building had definite advantages for journalism students, too. The new publications office was much larger, and boasted its own phone, filing space, desks and work tables and chairs plus large bulletin board areas.

Two new Chevrolets from Lawrence Auto Sales greeted drivers as they enrolled for the fall and spring semesters of drivers training. Highway safety was the emphasis of the instructors as they supervised classroom and on-the-road activities.

A suite of rooms west of the auditorium was, when it was completed, one of the business areas at Warren. The visual aids department was moved from Woodview into its new quarters after Christmas.

All film strips, films, projectors, phonographs and recorders used in the high school were stored and checked out from here.

Sharon Carter parks the drivers training car and returns to the building.

Barbara Darosett, Elaine Willis and Paul Harding scan old newspapers in beginning journalism to become acquainted with layout and writing styles.

and Film Varied the Daily Study Routine

Selecting a film from the vast library was one of the duties of Bonnie Ferrell. This library provided Warren faculty with an opportunity to vary their teaching methods.

Bob Ferguson operates the movie projector as a part of his myriad of duties in the audio-visual department.

Visual aids assistant Barbara Phillips rewinds film on one of the new machines in the audio-visual department.

Our Accomplishments Were Proudly Displayed

The Music Department presented several programs for the school and also for outside organizations even with their limited facilities in the fall.

Members of music groups entered state and local contests and brought honor to the school. Warrenaires and Trebletones achieved first place ratings at the State Solo and Ensemble Contest. The whole music department entered the State Choral Auditions and the County Choral Festival.

Music productions were presented at the Valentine Tea and the Christmas program. The music groups also presented a Christmas program over WTTV, and a Thanksgiving program for Meridian Heights Presbyterian Church. Outside productions numbered between 50 and 60. Climaxing the season for the orchestra was a variety show for the Midstate Orchestra Festival in April.

Sharon Uppfalt, cello; Laurel Wendt, viola; David Nysewander, clarinet; Sharon Hinchman, flute; and Bill Hall, tympani, members of the orchestra, prepared for the annual concert in the C. E. Eash Auditorium March 2. The orchestra wore their new red dinner jackets and semi-formal black and white dresses. (Photo by Joe Young.)

Senior play cast members became acquainted with "Charley's Aunt" early in March as they began rehearsals for the May 12 production. Reading scripts are Sherri Kennedy, Marijo Barnett, Jack Stiefel, Bud Vest, Judy Johnson, Bill Hall, Susan Douglas, Tom Jackson, Floyd Kirby and John Abernathy.

Drama productions included the senior play, a children's play and several one-acts for speech classes and Dramatics Club.

Because the auditorium was not finished until time for the Christmas convocation, club members and those people interested in dramatics handled their work in the cafeteria.

The children's play, given at an orphanage, was directed by Barbara Beldon. Participating cast members were Roy Allegree, Barbara Heron, Larry Wade, Bill Hall, John Butler, Mike Davis and Rita Robertson.

Willing seniors budgeted their time and spent hours in rehearsal to make their play, "Charley's Aunt," a success.

Judy Johnson rests between acts and scans the script for cues for her next entrance.

At the annual Valentine Tea girls again honored their mothers. Before the program mothers were guided through the receiving line where they met some of the administrators and faculty. After attending a program in the auditorium, mothers and daughters proceeded to the cafeteria for refreshments.

Activities Galore Occupied Homeroom and After-

For the socially minded Warrenite there existed no end to extra-curricular functions. Teas, dances, sock-hops, concerts, convocations, drama productions and sports events all vied for a place on the Warrenites' calendar. There were two semi-formal dances, Silver Swirl and the Spring Dance, plus several casual dances and numerous sock hops. Social events were often witness to the beginning of new fads and the exchange of ideas—ideas involving new steps, the latest in dress, and "neatest cars."

David Clark and Linda Nauta enjoy one of the sock hops scheduled after home football and basketball games.

Keith Eckler and Linda Zervas joined Ron Stamper and Sara Yotter at the traditional Fall Fantasy dance in the cafeteria.

At one pep session preceding the Warren-Ben Davis basketball game, cheerleaders presented a skit predicting the Warriors' ability to "scalp those Giants."

Students file from the auditorium following one of the convocations. No programs were scheduled until Christmas when the auditorium was finally completed.

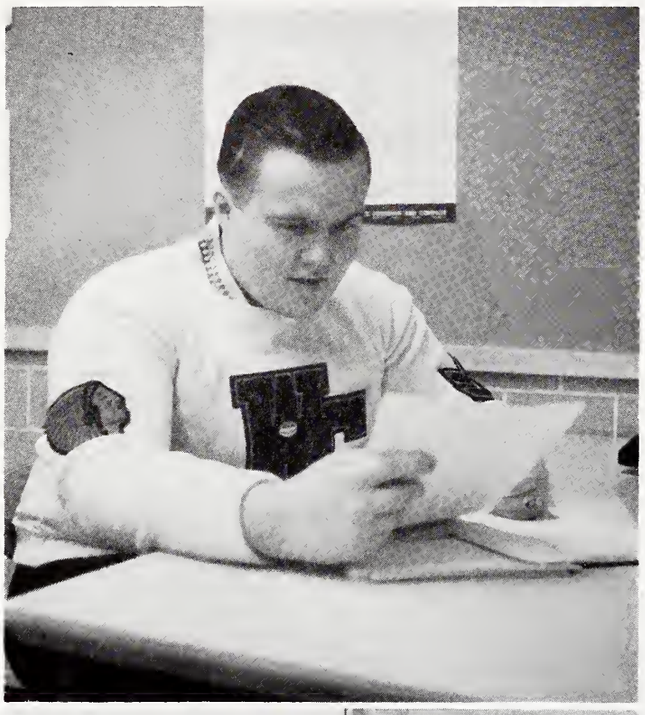
School Hours

In the first phase of the Christmas program, the entire student body gathered in the cafeteria to enjoy cookies and punch. They proceeded to the foyer to be led by the choir, assembled on the rotunda steps, in singing Christmas carols. The climax of the program was the music department's presentation of its annual medley of Christmas songs.

Robert Day, trumpeter with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, was guest soloist at the orchestra concert in March. Mr. Day is a graduate of Warren.

Joseph Barr, Indiana's 11th district representative to Congress, spoke to government classes on the functioning of the governing body. Following his speech, Mr. Barr opened the meeting to questions and discussion from the floor.

Those Who Achieved Deserved the Honors



Tom Jackson, Indiana's representative to the Williamsburg House of Burgesses in February, does research in preparation for his trip.

Members of the Governor's Youth Council, Ron Althardt and Susan Pert, review material in the library lounge.

Recognition Day was one of the highlights of the school year. Students who had won awards, honors and served their school were given recognition by their fellow students, teachers and administration.

Presentations that day included the D.A.R. Good Citizenship, the Askren Safe-Driving Contest, Safe Driving Contest, the George C. Keever Memorial, Quill and Scroll, Merle Sidner Journalism, and DeKalb Agriculture awards. Other honors included were service, attendance, music, scholastic, and athletic recognition.

Gwynne Bujarsky and Harold Apple, during Easter vacation, visited the United Nations and Washington, D.C. Laurel Wendt was Warren's semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Award contest. Bill Wood received second place in the solo contest. All six of Warren's entries placed first in their category in the Marion County 4-H and FFA demonstration contest. Howard Poole was selected as champion demonstrator, and he received a trophy plus a $100 scholarship. Jon Means and Stanley Mithoefer were reserve champions.

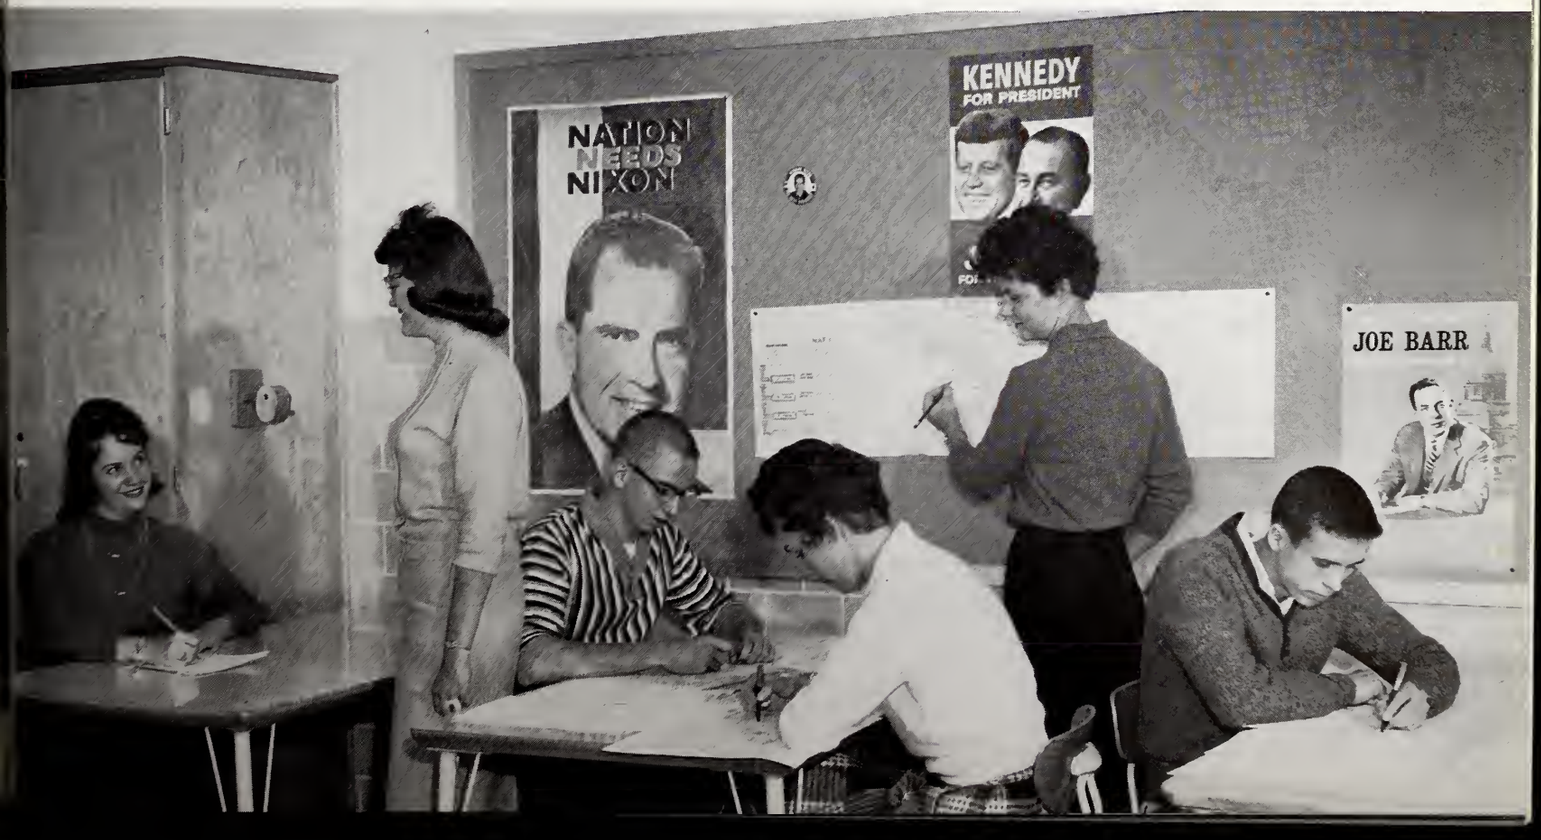
Carolyn Bailey, winner of the Betty Crocker Homemaking test, searches for the latest recipes.

They Were Awarded

Barbara Roach, Marijo Barnett, Leslie Gill, Curt Morgan, Judy Mann and Kay Cuddy attended Journalism Institute at Indiana University during the summer of 1960. These pupils studied with experts in varied fields of publications.

Kay Cuddy received the Daughters of the American Revolution good citizenship award. Kay was chosen on the basis of patriotism, leadership, citizenship and scholarship, and she competed for the state honor with other district winners.

Participating in the Girls' and Boys' State activities during the summer of 1960 were Susan Douglas, Karen McCollough, Ron Althardt, Kay Cuddy, Sandie Cole and George McLean. Local civic organizations sponsored candidates through the American Legion. Representatives were acquainted with processes of state and local government.



And so chivalry is not dead! Harold Johnson helps Sharon Blume with her coat as they chat with Donna Pennington at the end of another school day.

"Why don't these teas come more often?" muses Joe Duncan as Carol Klingelhoefer parades by on her way to the Valentine Tea.

King Fashion Ruled Teens' Dress and Customs

Cheryl Bartholomew and Sherri Bremer carefully adjust their headbands. Originating during the twenties, headbands regained much of their lost popularity.

Bright colors, short skirts, bulky sweaters and pegged pants highlighted the 1960-61 fads and fashions. From top to bottom something new was added to make the year's fashions different.

Warrenites walked the halls with tennis shoes and long socks. With a swish, knees peeked out under the shorter than ever pleated skirts. Angora and lamb's wool were "the thing" in sweaters.

The election even had its effects on hair-dos. The Jackie Kennedy style joined the bubble and French twist to be favorites among the girls. The burr and flat top remained popular with the boys. The male populace sported vests, pegged pants, bulky sweaters and ivy league shirts.

For movie dates or informal dance, the young men donned suits while the girls still favored the sheath dresses. At more formal dances fellas in tuxes admired their dates who wore both full and cocktail length dresses.

Diana Farrell, Blocks' Fashion Board representative, and Kay Cuddy, member of Ayres' Board, enjoy a brief respite from the everyday routine of homework with Dave Davis and Byron Silvers.

Everyday Routines Had Memorable Moments

The average student's day begins the moment he steps on the bus in the morning and ends when he is again delivered to his stop in the afternoon. While traveling to school, he performs such last-minute tasks as wrapping rings, cramming for classes, and discussing the latest events.

Once inside Warren, pupils hastily return books, chat with friends, consult teachers and finish a multitude of jobs. Following announcements and devotions, the Warrenite is again off on his daily routine—this time to club meetings.

After this abbreviated respite, the still-sleepy student is jolted into the wide-awake world of facts and figures by the beginning of first period. The social day reaches its climax at lunch where pupils, after eating, visit with their neighbors.

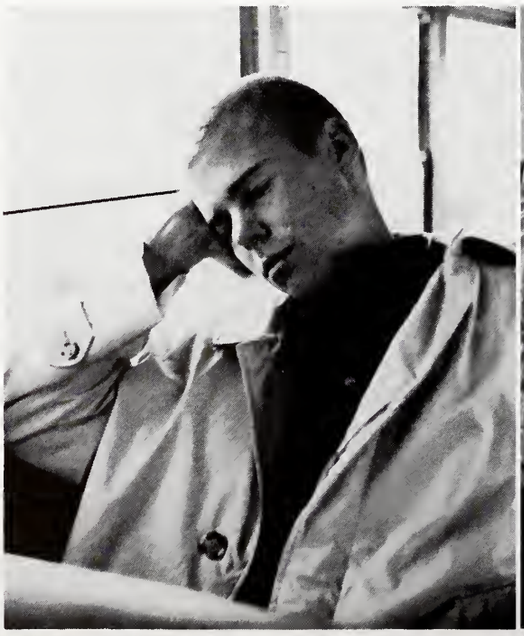
With the completion of afternoon classes, the Warrenite gathers his books and materials (usually weighing from 15 to 20 pounds!) and heads for his bus amid the throng of weary teens.

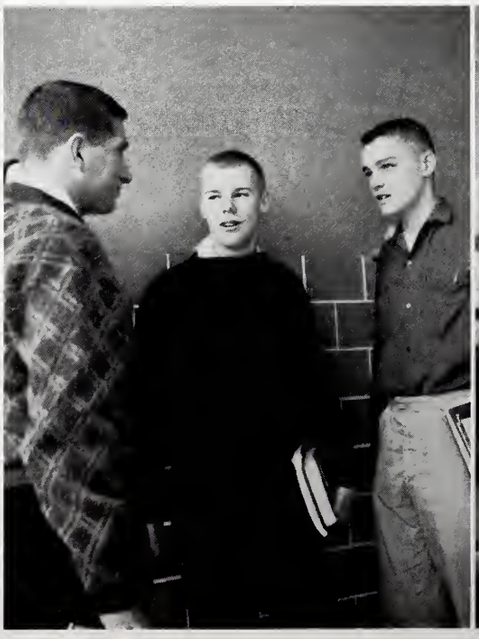
Sharon Zabel lugs a mound of books from the library in preparation for her research theme.

The school day doesn't exactly begin with a bang for Richie Martin! That quick snooze he catches on the bus to school helps prepare him for the long day ahead.

Tim Marsh, Richie, Brian Livingston and Harold McIntyre exchange the latest gossip as they wait for the first bell to ring.

Classroom activities -- reading, notetaking and just listening—take up most of Richies's day.



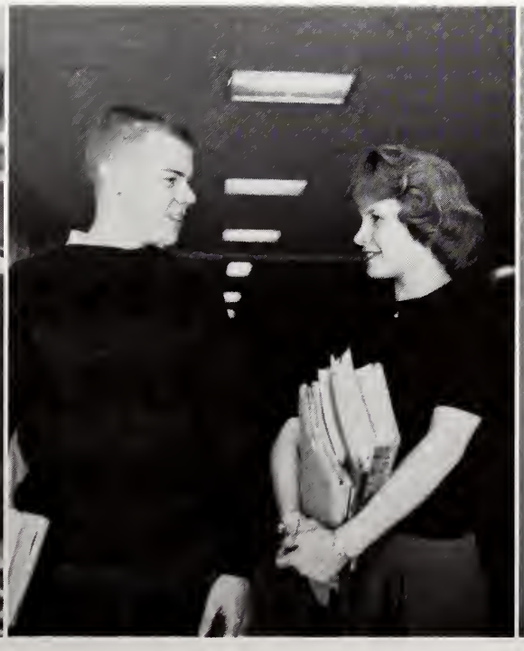


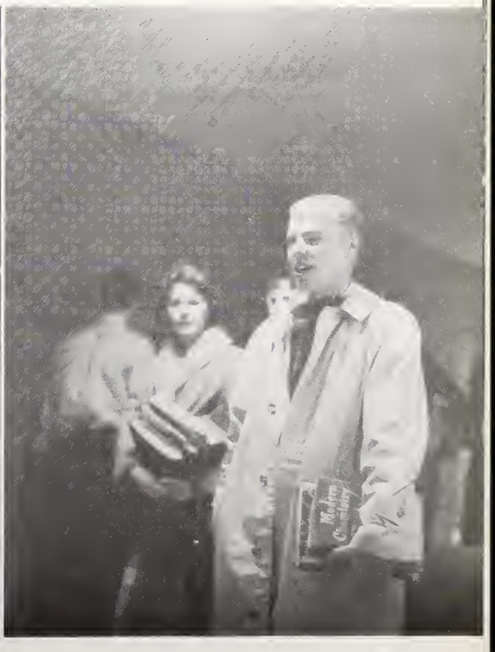
Janice Croucher, Sharon Rasener and Nancy Applegate eat lunch in their classroom as did all students before the cafeteria was finished.

The lunch break comes at last! He shares nis notes and his lunch with Suzy Sicking before the three afternoon classes begin.

Richie and JoAnne McClarren discuss the next assignment as they meet in the corridor, and the day is nearly over.

The 3:30 bell has sounded and one thousand Warrenites (with Richie in the middle) stream from classrooms, onto buses . . . and home.





The Last Days Were

Seniors as well as underclassmen enjoyed the first semi-formal dance of the year in the beautiful foyer. Dancers moved about the tree amid the glitter of Christmas and tinsel and cluster of stars depicting "Silver Swirl."

Over—Challenge of Living Was Yet to be Accepted

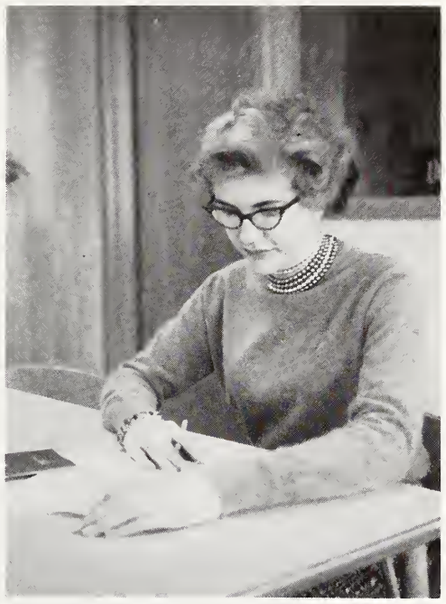
As the first graduating class in the new Warren, seniors were faced with the task of leading the school in setting new traditions and transferring customs of old Warren to their new setting.

Before school opened students had already participated in their first upperclassman activity—that of posing for their senior portraits. The election of council representatives from home rooms instead of government classes was the first example in which the senior class used its power to begin new traditions.

Money-making projects included the sale of ballpoint pens, class pins, license plates and invitations. Other projects included the class play and a paper sale.

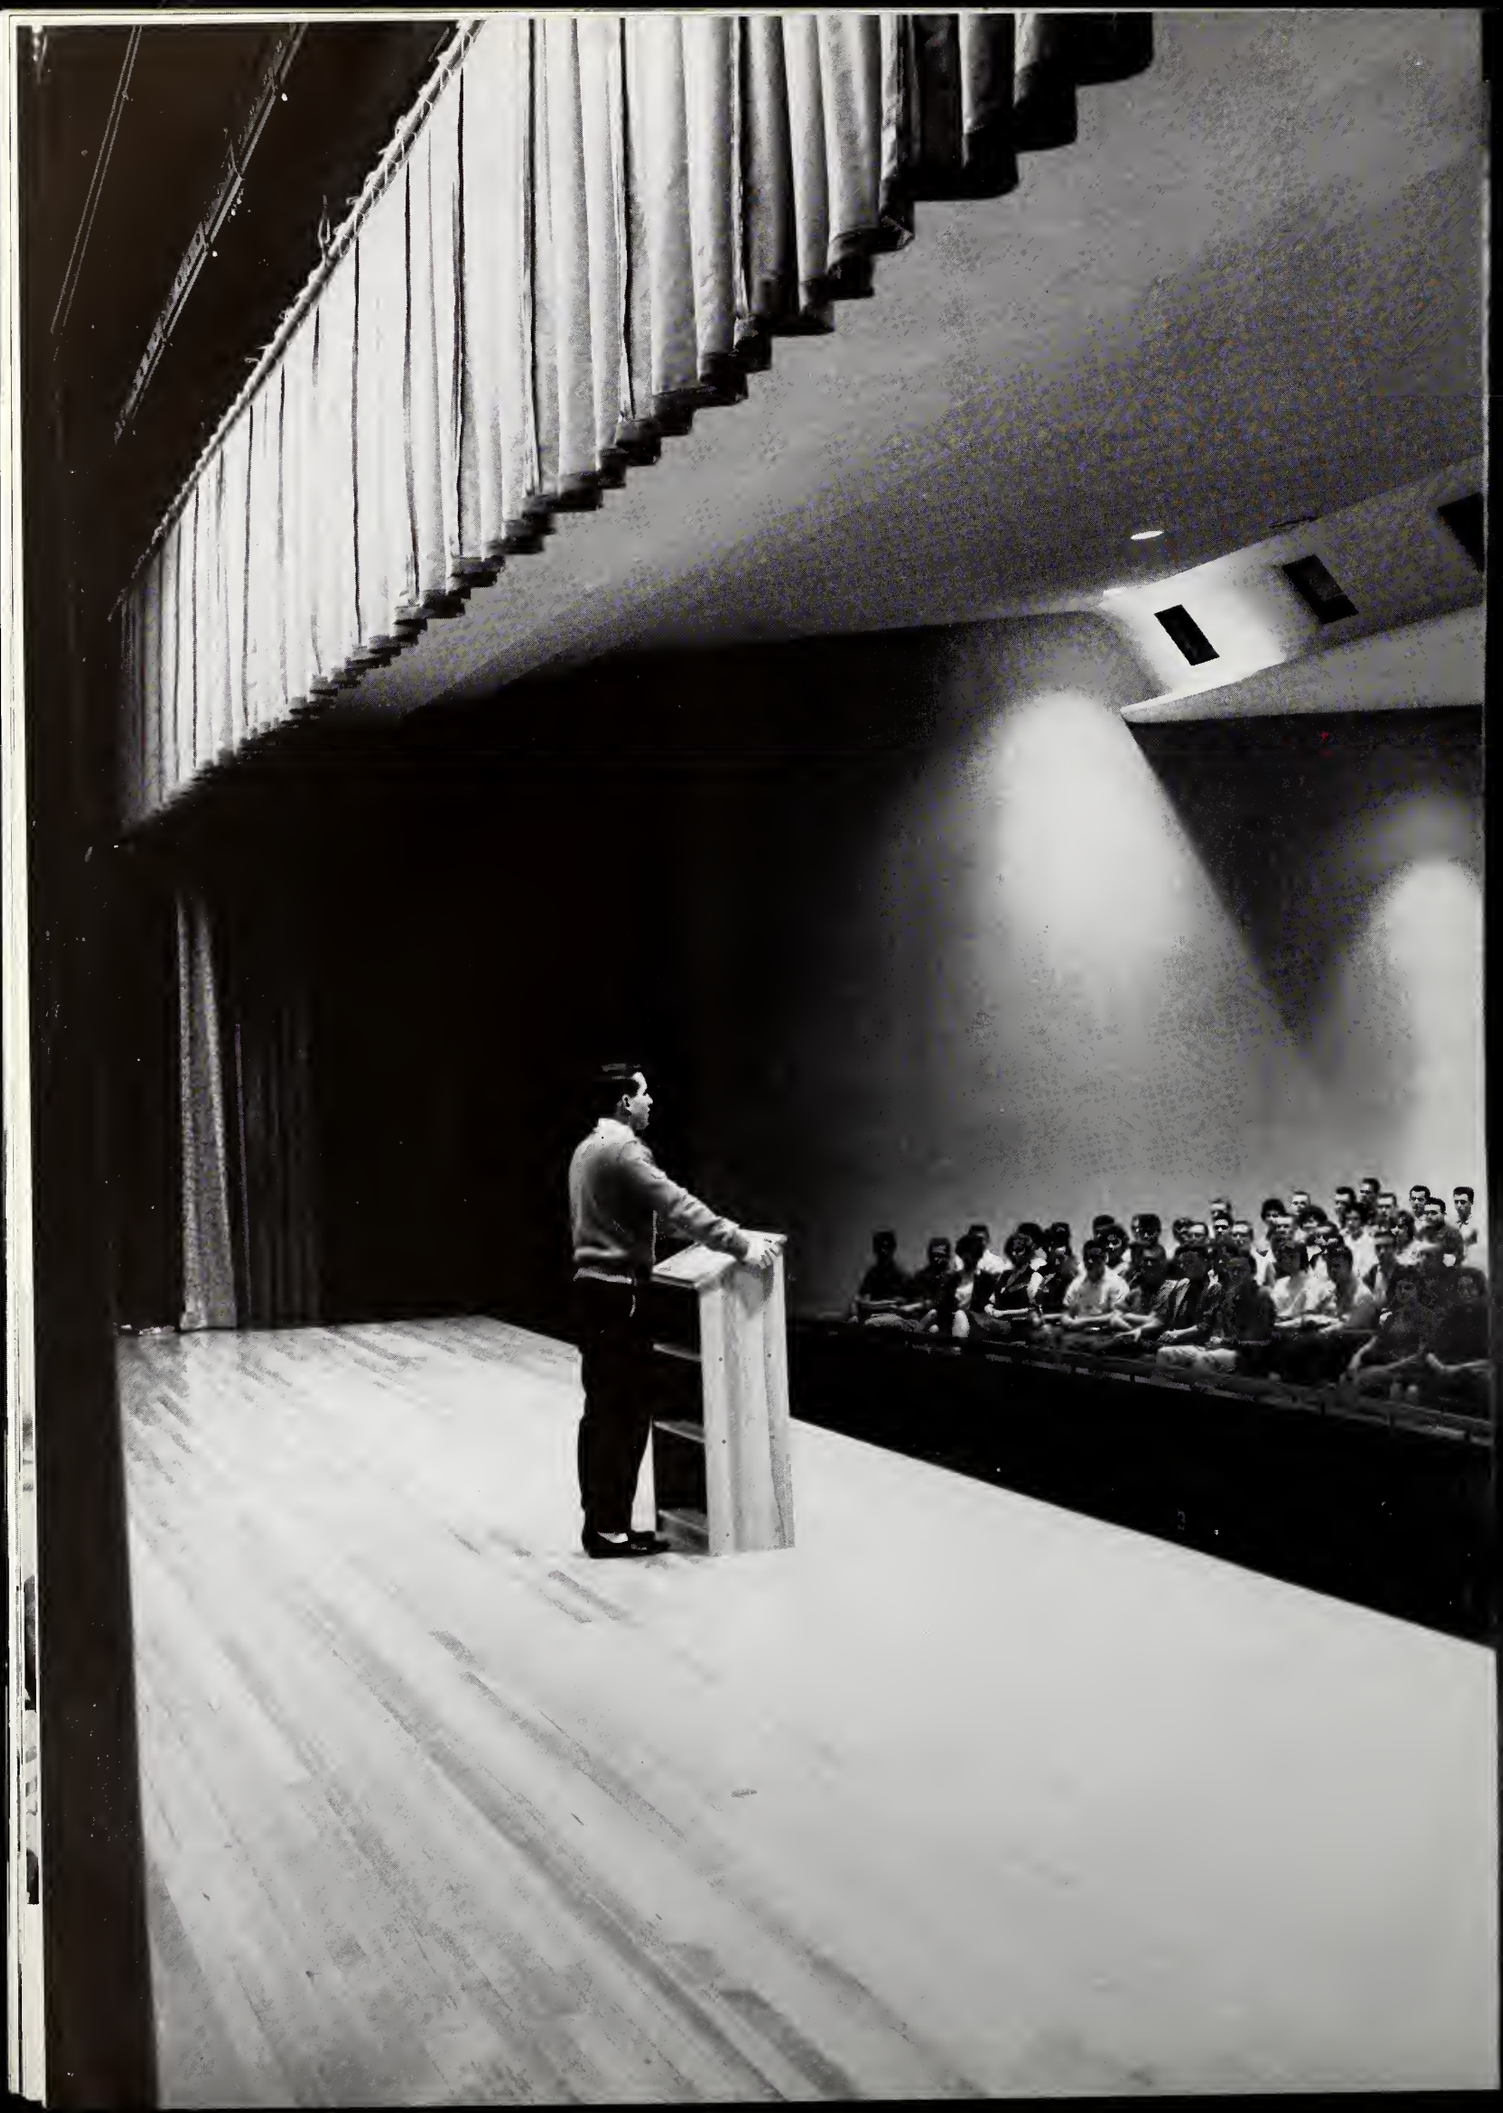
On senior day, the first and third Monday of every month, class cords and colors, lavender and white, were featured. As senior week advanced, the socially-minded added the finishing touches to their elaborate plans, and scholars gravely crammed for those all important finals.

Commencement services climaxed senior week. A round of rehearsals, quick shopping sprees, gay parties, long-awaited dances, and annual picnics . . . and the year was over.



Laurel Wendt, finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Testing program, checks over information on colleges.

Leaving the memories of the past four years behind, seniors in their caps and gowns march toward their future. Commencement brought those time-honored feelings of happiness and nostalgia to Warren seniors as they recalled moments that will always be remembered.



As homeroom announcements end, students swarm into halls.

Councils and committees

Plan and decide, and a multitude of ideas are reality.

Student leadership exemplifies

That social growth is a vital factor.

Old traditions must, by necessity, pass away.

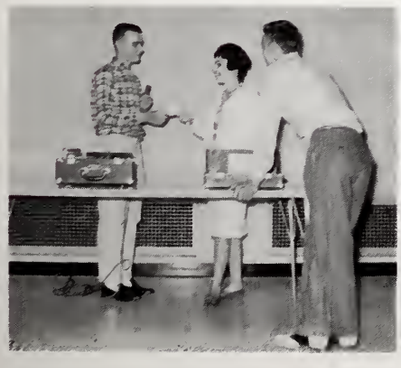
New ones must take their place.

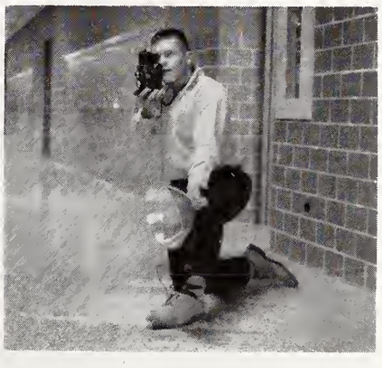
The physical changes of a new high school building

Reflect changes in attitudes, too.

With Change Comes Challenge

In Activities





A new pride rises slowly and steadily,

Touching everyone,

Until we know that Warren Central stands alone in accomplishment.

Councils Governed Student Activity

Without a student governing body, the school would not have the relationship between students and administration which is necessary to the orderly functioning of any educational system.

Representatives to the Student Council were elected through each homeroom in the fall. Officers of the council had been elected previously by an all-school election. Officers and delegates met every other Monday in the new student lounge to discuss problems and activities of school.

Through this representative body, under the direction of Mrs. Maude Siebert and Mr. Obert Piety, students sponsored and planned such activities as dances, convocations, sock hops, Courtesy Week, elections of the queens and cheerleaders and the Yard-Parks clean-up campaign.

Planning Student Council activities are Bruce Embrey, treas.; Bob Smith, pres.; Paul Settles, vice-pres.; Susan Woodworth, par.; Gwynne Bujarsky, sec.

Boarding the bus to attend this year's State Student Council Convention are members of Student Council who returned planning for next year's convention at Warren.

Planned Money-Making Projects

Quill and Scroll, an International Honorary Society, encourages and rewards student achievement in journalism and school publications. To be eligible for membership, one must be in the upper third of his class, do superior work in journalism or publication, and be recommended by the supervisor.

Warren's club sponsored a publications dinner at which members of the 1961-62 newspaper, yearbook and News Bureau staffs were named.

Senior Honor Society members, chosen from the top 10 percent of their classes, earned money for a scholarship fund with a disc jockey dance and a ribbon drive at Christmas.

Members also inducted Franklin Central students into their newly formed chapter of the society in their new school building in February.

Members decided that Warren's Junior and Senior Honor Societies would be combined into one National Honor Society next fall.

Quill and Scroll members gather in the publications office to check files and bound newspapers. Inducted in the spring were, first row: Kaye Higgs, Judy Mann and Kay Cuddy. Second row: Ellen Jones, Ted Crouch, John Abernathy and Marijo Barnett.

Bud Vest and Gloria Sherban were two of the singers who contributed to the morning devotions. Even though the school was changed from old Warren to new Warren, the emphasis on religion continued to be a tradition. Each morning students started the school day by taking a few moments for meditation.

Emphasis Placed on Religion by Bible Club

HI-C OFFICERS — Sue McCowan, sec.; Jack Stiefel, pres.; Richie Martin, vice-pres.; and Paula Prall, treas.; were responsible for organizing the religious activities of the school's Bible club, largest in the world for several years. Its purpose was to fulfill the students' spiritual needs and to promote Christian acceptance and better church attendance. Members of the club represented Warren at several Youth for Christ rallies as part of their activities. Faculty sponsors were Mrs. Nancy Wright and Mr. Paul Parkison.

Service Clubs Promoted Leadership,

ALPHA HI-Y OFFICERS—Discussing their planned projects for the coming year, club officers used the new library as their meeting place. Elected by popular vote of club members were (seated) Dave Norton, treas.; Tom Jackson, pres.; and Bill Southern, sec. Standing Jay Denny, chaplain, and Jim Weber, sgt.-at-arms.

Purpose of Alpha Hi-Y was to perform services throughout the community, in the home and especially in the school. The club, a national organization working with the YMCA, is composed of junior and senior boys. Along with their sponsor, Mr. Charles Trees, Alpha members worked with the school in planning and carrying out their activities.

Main project of the club was collecting money for its annual Clothe-a-Child campaign, appropriately named "Pail of Dimes." Members of the club decorated pails for donations which were placed on lunch tables. While part of the money collected was donated to the March of Dimes, most of it was used to help needy children.

Alpha Hi-Y also was responsible for the Silver Swirl and Fall Fantasy, annual Christmas and fall dances.

Discussing the annual "Pail of Dimes" project are seniors Phil Marshall and Dick Kline; and Jim Eaton, junior, as they planned distribution of the containers.

Planned Activities, Had Fun

TRI-HI-Y members representing Warren at the Model U.N. were Susan George, Carole Linneman and Sue Turner.

Junior and senior girls who were members of the Tri Hi-Y were privileged to participate in the many activities of the club. The main project was one of the biggest social events of the year, the annual Valentine Tea. The tea is planned for the benefit of members and their mothers, and gives girls a chance to say, "We're proud of you, Mom," and to introduce mothers to the school and to their friends. Members of the club composed committees responsible for invitations, flowers, table decorations, publicity, cleaning up and the reception line. The 1961 tea was the 30th such event in the history of Warren.

The Tri-Hi-Y sent three representatives to the Model U. N., and also co-sponsored two dances. Tri Hi-Y members were able to participate as a group in activities planned at the East Side Family Y since the club is affiliated with the Y.

TRI-HI-Y OFFICERS—Discussing the tea program are Judy Mann, chaplain; Nancy Applegate, treas.; Carol Jones, sec.; and Linda Kelly Zervas, vice-pres. Displaying a corsage to be presented to her mother is Sandie Cole, pres.

BETA HI-Y OFFICERS—Ready to begin another day of activity planning, the club's officers enter the new Warren building. Discussing their plans are Keith Jung, pres.; Dane Lantz, vice-pres.; Charles DeLora, treas.; and Bob Lusby, sec.

Beta Served School, Community With Projects

To "create, maintain, and extend throughout the school, home, and community, high standards of Christian character," is the purpose of the Beta Hi-Y. Sophomore boys who were members strived to achieve these goals by participating in the various projects and activities of the club. Beta, affiliated with the YMCA, co-sponsored several dances and religious programs.

Warrenettes, designed to promote high moral standards and direct social activities, was open for membership to all sophomore girls. Girls and their sponsor, Mrs. Mary Ruth Fowler, fed and clothed a family, co-sponsored the fall and Christmas dances, planned a picnic in the spring, and co-sponsored the annual Mother-Daughter Valentine Tea.

WARRENETTE OFFICERS — Discussing their plans for the Christmas Dance while helping with decorations for the dance are officers Susan Traub, treas.; Carol Meadows, vice-pres.; Susan Fink. pres.; and Barbara Beldon, sec.

DRAMATICS CLUB—Performing the induction ceremony for the Warren Central Chapter of the National Thespian Society were Dramatics Club officers, Bill Hall, program chmn.; Judy Johnson, treas.; Susan Douglas, pres.; Barbara Beldon, sec.; and Floyd Kirby, vice-pres.

Lack of an auditorium slightly hampered the Dramatics Club. Instead of an all school play, two one-act plays, one at Christmas, the other at a scheduled meeting, took its place. Make-up demonstrations and readings had top priority at other stated meetings.

Special side-trips were scheduled to Zaring Theater to see "Paint Your Wagon" and to the Spotlight Musicals.

In April enthusiastic members trekked to Muncie for the biennial state convention.

The senior play, under the direction of Mrs. Suzanne Carey, gave seniors a chance at acting, directing and casting. Various committees also afforded seniors the opportunity to participate in the play.

The National Thespian Society, a fairly new chapter, held its annual induction ceremonies in May.

The purpose of the club is to promote an interest in Dramatics and foster a feeling of working well together.

Correct application of stage make-up was demonstrated by Sylvia Robb and Ralph Welling at a Dramatics Club meeting.

To gain additional Thespian points, members often gave dramatic readings. Barbara Beldon performed at one of the meetings.

Warren Students Planned Careers in Business,

Crop judging, demonstrations and livestock judging were three of the many activities available to boys who were members of the Future Farmers of America and enrolled in vocational agriculture.

The "ag" boys worked to earn degrees in agriculture by participating in exhibitions, demonstrations and judgings. Boys earned their degrees and titles of either "greenhand" or "chapter farmer;" they were initiated by other club members. Five applicants worked for the highest degree, "State Farmer."

Under the direction of sponsor Mr. Vonn Hayes, members participated in both county and state fair exhibits.

A national organization, Future Homemakers of America was organized on the Warren campus several years ago under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ita Richardson, home economics instructor.

Under the roof of a new school and the leadership of a new sponsor, Mrs. Linda Barnes, the club established goals equal to those achieved in the past. To increase knowledge of girls in every phase of homemaking, from sewing and cooking to child care, was the purpose of Future Homemakers.

F.H.A. members worked toward earning their Junior Homemakers Degree by doing specified chores at home and at school. Another project of the club was collecting for the Heart Fund.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA — Demonstrating the shearing of sheep were Howard Poole, sec.; Earl Coleman, pres.; and Dave Clark, treas. Not pictured was Stan Mithoefer, vice-pres. Future Farmers Club is an organization designed to stimulate an interest in farming as a profession.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS—Dixie Bean, pres.; Charlotte McDonald, treas.; Glenda Miers, sec.; and Donna Whiteside, vice-pres.; look over and discuss recipes which were tried in the new home economics laboratory. Among other topics of discussion at meetings were the latest fashions.

Education, Agriculture, Homemaking

Future Business Leaders of America endeavored to promote understanding and interest in the business profession. The objective of the club was to develop competent business leadership. To be eligible for Warren's chapter of F. B. L. A., a student must have completed one commerce subject.

The main activity of the club was attending the State F.B.L.A. Convention in March at Muncie. At the convention, members elected state officers for next year, selected Mr. and Miss F.B.L.A., participated in a spelling contest, and announced the winner of the Studebaker Scholarship given to the best business student in the state.

Another project of this year's club included a field trip to local industries under the supervision of the sponsor, Miss Lokile Hicks.

Future Teachers of America, a national organization, gave students an opportunity to develop interest in the teaching profession and illustrated the benefits of teaching as a career.

Mr. Donald Saylor, sponsor of Warren's F. T. A., was responsible for organizing this year's cadet teaching program. Qualified senior members of the club chose the grade level they wished to teach and were then assigned to classes at Moorhead Grade School and Woodview Junior High. Student teachers who took part in the program gained valuable experience in teaching and working with children.

Statistics say that many more teachers, both elementary and secondary—are needed in the United States educational systems, and through such programs as the F. T. A.'s cadet teaching, high school students are made aware of the benefits of teaching.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS—President Janet Basey presides over a meeting of officers of F.B.L.A. Typing the minutes at one of the new electric typewriters is Sec. Leigh Ann Hettenvan. Vice-pres. Joan Basey and Treas. Kay Cuddy listen to programs planned for the coming months.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA — F.T.A. officers prepare lessons to be used in their cadet teaching. Sec. Sharon Cahill writes a lesson for her class while Treas. Tom Jackson consults the dictionary. Vice-pres. Marjorie Hart writes a spelling lesson as Marijo Barnett, pres., practices speaking to her class.

Warren's Small Organizations Strived to Aid

Warren is one of many schools in the county which have a Junior Red Cross chapter participating in the County Board in Indianapolis. Board members met once a month with other high school delegates at the Red Cross County Chapter House and discussed their clubs.

Main project of Warren's club was an overseas chest. Containers for money donations were placed at each lunch line in the cafeteria, and the money that was donated by students and teachers was used to pay for the building of the chest. Items in the chest were bought or donated by members.

Other projects included a party for the Lutherwood Children's Home and participation of members in the United Fund Campaign.

Sponsor of the Red Cross was Mrs. Ozella Schlosser.

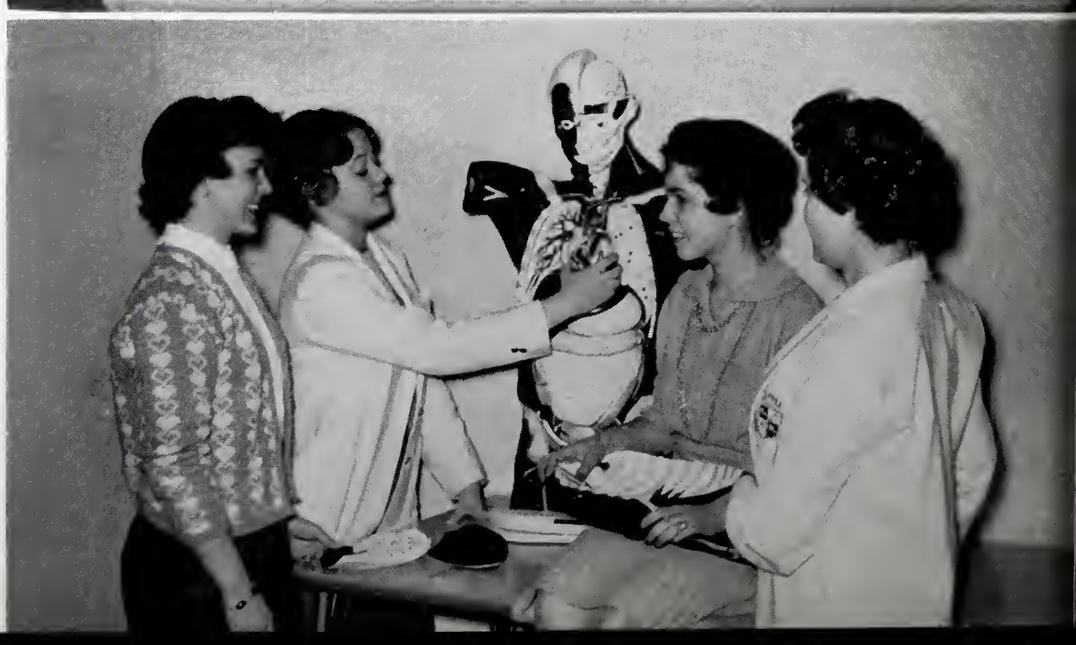
As the United States grows, the continual need for more qualified nurses increases. Medical authorities are concerned with the small number of girls entering training.

Such clubs as Warren's Future Nurses Club of America, sponsored by School Nurse Sue Coleman, attempted to promote interest in the study of nursing as a profession. Membership was open to all girls interested. This year 70 girls joined the club.

Main project was the club's sponsorship of a little girl, Pamela, who was fed and clothed by the members. Future Nurses also planned entertainment for Pamela and her family during the Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter holidays.

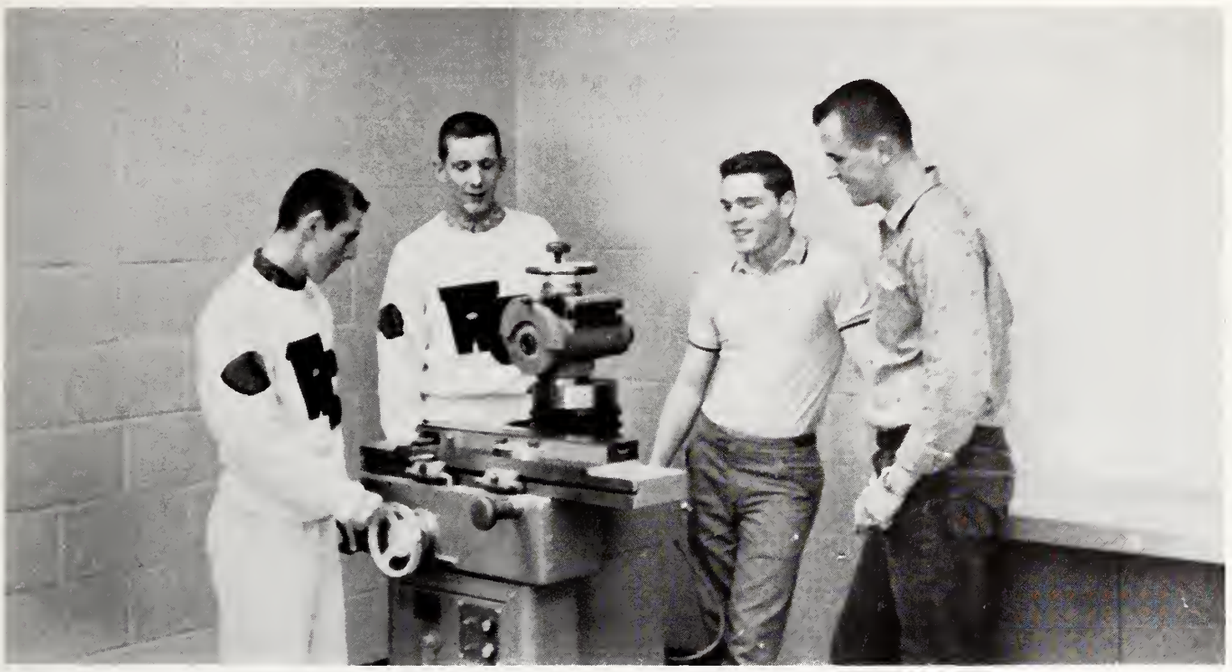
Junior Volunteer Nurses at Community Hospital were sponsored by and composed of members of Nurses Club.

RED CROSS — Reading literature and formulating ideas on the correct application of safety techniques are the club's officers, Carol Hunt, sec.; Charlotte Watkins, treas.; Kathy Wehr, pres.; Bill Wood, sgt.-at-arms; and Kay Higgs, vice-pres.



NURSES CLUB — Pres. Harriett Fitch explains various parts of the human anatomy to other officers who are Janet McWhiney, sec.; Daret Matthews, treas.; and Stephanie Takala, vice-pres. Nurses Club offers help to girls interested in laboratory sciences, bacteriology and nursing.

Students with Special Hobbies, Vocational Interests



INDUSTRIAL ARTS — Millard Roberts, vice-pres.; Kenny Osswald, pres.; Joe Stratman, sec.-treas.; and Jim St. Clair, sgt.-at-arms; examine one of the new pieces of equipment in the industrial arts rooms. Learning to operate new machinery was the first step in starting successful projects. Purpose of the club is to establish an interest in industry and to develop skills in the individual boy. The club points out the advantages of a career in industry.

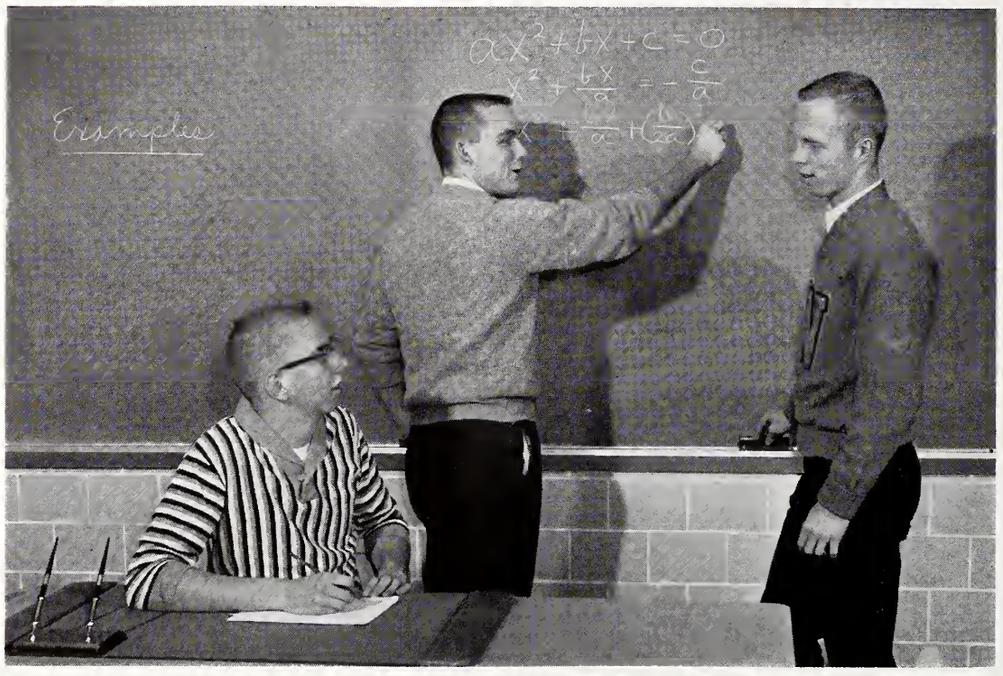
The whir of machinery was familiar to members of the Industrial Arts Club as new equipment was installed and used in shop classes. Members of the club used the new facilities in completing club projects and also in building scenery and various decorations for the Dramatics Club and the art department.

Moving to a new school did not hinder the club's Annual Derby Hat Sale. Under the direction of Mr. Gene Crosier, boys sold these hats during county tourney time and sectionals. The money made on the sale was used to build a special project donated to the school at the end of the year.

Drivers Club, consisting of pupils interested in the safety of Warren drivers, worked to insure the continuation of Warren's safe driving record. Under the direction of Mr. Herman Nolte and Mr. Alan Miedema, the club sponsored a car check which all cars driven to school had to pass. The club also sent representatives Barbara Wilson and Steve Gioe to the Indianapolis Teen-Age Safety Council.

DRIVERS CLUB—Vic Clevenger, vice-pres.; Steve Gioe and Barbara Wilson, and Ted Crouch, pres.; have an informal discussion of safe driving techniques before starting out to apply them to their own driving. Barbara and Steve represented W.C.H.S. on the Teen-Age Safety Council this year.

Lectures and Experiments Outside Propelled



MU ALPHA THETA — Debating over the solution to a problem, officers Ron Althardt, vice-pres., Bill Southern, sec., and Dave Davis, pres.; apply their skills in mathematics. The club is one of three national mathematics honor societies in the state.

Mu Alpha Theta, one of three national mathematics honor societies for senior high schools in Indiana, provided an opportunity for students to further their mathematical interests. The chapter, sponsored by Mr. Robert Ledger, prepared students for a future in mathematical careers.

To qualify for membership a pupil must have been either a junior or a senior and have achieved an academic average of B or higher. Four semesters of college preparatory mathematics must have been completed, and the student must have enrolled in the fifth semester.

Lectures and experiments held the attention of Science Club members, sister organization to the Math Club. Its sponsor, Mr. Max Meise, helped to formulate the club which is only in its second year.

Emphasizing the importance of science in the future was the main aim of the club. A trip to Butler University's observatory and one to Allison's Powerama helped to demonstrate the necessity for scientists in this fast-moving world.

Participation of students in various science projects was encouraged by Mr. Meise and the club's officers.

SCIENCE CLUB — Jack Chaney, vice-pres., Ron Waltz, pres.; and Larry Burns, sec.-treas.; complete an experiment to be used as a demonstration for a club meeting. The club's activities cover biology, chemistry, physics and practical science.

Interests

HISTORY CLUB OFFICERS—Byron Silvers, pres.; Claudia Gastineau, sec.; Aniela Klekowski; vice-pres.; and Dianne Terrell, treas., meet the challenges of new Warren. Sponsored by Mr. David Sausser, the club had as its aims the promotion of interest in and appreciation of history and its related subject areas.

SPANISH CIRCLE OFFICERS — "Gracias," replied Kent Stevens, sgt.-at-arms; Kathy Longshore, vice-pres.; Nancy Neal, treas.; Diane Wallace, sec.; Stan Martin, pres.; after they were elected to serve the Spanish Circle for 1960-61. The club, sponsored by Mrs. Lourene Dodson, strived to promote an interest in the Pan-American countries. Only second and third year students could belong. Films, speakers and special programs developed appreciation of foreign customs.

FRENCH CLUB — Looking over a map of France are French Club officers, Darlene Hall, treas.; David Wayman, vice-pres.; and Mike Chaney, pres. Not pictured is Barbara Beldon, sec. The club, under the direction of Miss Betty Stephens, had as its aim the promotion of learning French and learning the customs of France. A Christmas party demonstrated several of the native games as well as French traditions. In its second year, the club had as its project the formulating of a puppet show to be given in the spring.

Letterman's Club, Pep Block, G.A.A.

PEP BLOCK OFFICERS — Inspecting shakers in preparation for sectionals are officers Stevie Woempner, vice-pres.; Jeannie Hess, sec.; Sherri Bremer, treas.; and Ellen Jones, pres.

Backing Warren's teams was the objective of the Girls' Pep Block through the sponsorship of Mr. Ronald Roach, and it created and promoted an atmosphere of good sportsmanship among Warren students.

At every home game, 130 girls donned their white blouses and screamed their lungs out for Warren. During the County Tourney, girls wore black and yellow gloves and black derby hats. At sectional time, the old stand-bys, capes and gloves, were worn with yellow mum corsages.

Exemplified Good Sportsmanship

LETTERMEN'S CLUB OFFICERS—Surveying the gymnasium as well as discussing further projects for Lettermen's Club are Bob Smith, treas.; Jerry Yocum, pres.; and Dave Norton, vice-pres. Not pictured is Sherman Merriman, sec. The club planned to sponsor the annual awards dances, each one designating special sports.

The Letterman's Club is one in which Warren athletes desire membership. Any sophomore, junior or senior athlete who has earned inter-scholastic awards may belong. The club holds as its objective the promotion of a wholesome athletic program. It endeavors also to better the relationship between athletes, coaches and administration.

Members of the "W" Club had the responsibility of ushering at home games as well as sponsoring an athletic banquet.

Warren's G.A.A. is a member of a state organization, the Indiana League of High School Girl's Athletic Associations. Stimulation of the co-curricular phase of the girls' physical education program is its purpose.

Activities such as softball, volleyball, swimming, bowling, archery and basketball were organized by officers and guided by managers. Athletic awards were given to girls earning the required amount of points.

G.A.A. OFFICERS—In formation for archery practice are Sharon Charters, pres.; Jerrie Porter, treas.; Janet Adams, pub. chmn.; Judy Stacey, vice-pres.; and Susan Smith, sec.

Journalism Staffs

Judy Mann, editor of the Owl, and Marijo Barnett, managing editor, pin the Owl sign to the bulletin board. In the lower left hand picture, Barbara Roach, business manager, checks her files.

The newspaper staff informs the students of daily happenings at Warren by publishing a bi-weekly paper, the OWL. Each Warrenite receives a copy.

Members of the staff gain valuable knowledge in newspaper layout, writing, management and advertising.

To be eligible for OWL staff, students must have had at least one year of journalism. Beginning the second semester, the OWL staff was able to have its publications printed by Warren's printing staff.

As one way of raising revenue for the publications department, members of the staff ordered yellow mums with black ribbon to sell for homecoming.

OWL REPORTERS—Suzanne Duncan, Linda Evans, Keith Blackwell, Sue Nicewanger, Dick Hoy, Sheri Bremer, Dave Davis and Diana Farrell finish an issue.

Prepared News, Records of Student Activities

What is a yearbook? Theoretically, a yearbook is a pictorial record of a year's events explained by copy blocks and emphasized by headlines. For Warrenites, the WIGWAM is even more than that. It is a special reminder of every student's school life. Its pictures are reminders of the dances, convocations, clubs, teachers and classmates who helped to make each year of growing an unforgettable one. The copy recalls ballgames, queens, traditions and experiences from the past year.

Members of the staff worked to produce a good book. They performed such duties as planning and taking pictures, writing identifications, and copy blocks, and organizing suitable headlines.

Alfred Ard-Vark was a prominent member of staff because he was responsible for subscriptions. His trials and tribulations were heard for a week over the public address system. His inspiring adventures encouraged many students to purchase their WIGWAMS.

Distribution of the 1960-61 WIGWAM and a signing party were planned for the last of May.

Editor-in-chief Kay Cuddy conferred with associate editors John Abernathy and Judy Johnson as they determined the theme for the 1961 WIGWAM.

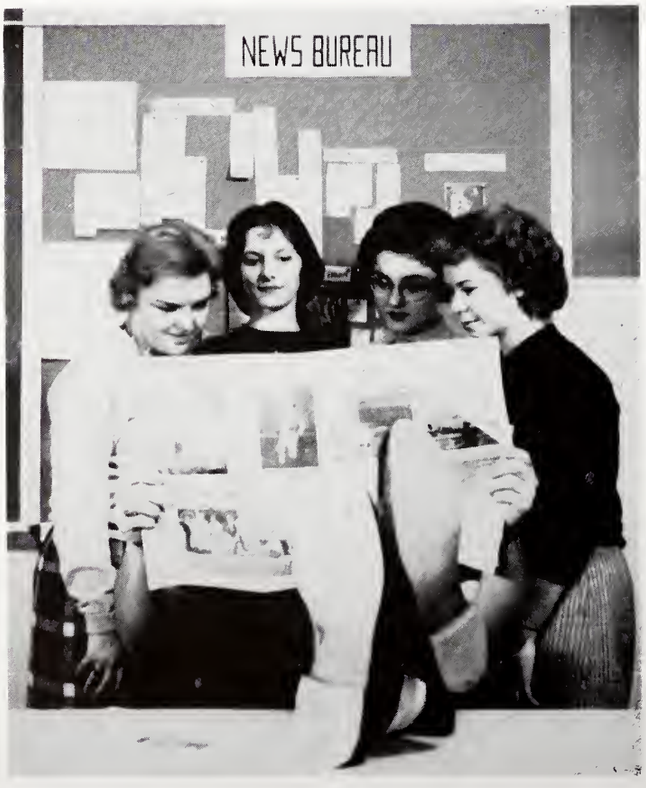
Annual Depended on Ads

One of the most important functions of a yearbook staff is the financing for without the business staff, the WIGWAM could not be successful. Members of the business staff perform duties which include soliciting advertisements from business employers, planning and scheduling pictures for ads and supervising the sale of yearbooks. All subscriptions were taken care of by this busy group.

Biggest task of the staff was to plan a special program to launch the WIGWAM sales. This year the staff wrote and presented the adventures of Alfred Ard-Vark over the public address system.

Stephanie Woempner, subscription manager, types receipts for yearbook payments while her male colleagues plan their advertisement campaigns. Charles Ashbrook and Kenny Arnold check advertisements in previous yearbooks while Byron Silvers, ad manager, and Larry Franke foresee the total amounts to be received from ads.



The News Bureau, although the smallest of the publication staffs, has the highly important job of presenting Warren to the people of Indianapolis. Almost all school news printed in city and county newspapers is written by these students.

Members of the News Bureau were kept busy digging for the latest news, writing stories, and sending them to four newspapers in and around the Indianapolis area and to the county publications.

Writing about school activities for the Indianapolis and Marion County newspapers are four newspaper correspondents from Warren. The reporters, Barbara Wilson, Marion County Courier; Judie Hollenbeck, Teen Star; Mary Ellen Ferverda, Times; and Gemma Uberto, News; watch a male admirer check one of their stories.

RADIO CLUB OFFICERS—Dale Earhart, president; and his brother Alan Earhart, vice-president, demonstrate the correct way to assemble a radio. Not pictured is Ben Bingham, secretary-treasurer. The officers of this year's club were responsible for organizing its members and conducting the business of the club.

Radio, Chess Clubs Offered Recognition of Hobbies

"A favorite pastime" is the term applied to the Radio Club, sponsored by Mr. Larry Smith. Boys interested in radio found here an outlet for their energies and interests.

Purpose of the group is to foster first an interest in the mechanics of the radio and second, to teach boys to be home operators.

Transmitters, receivers, microphones, Morse Code, and radio conference maps are only a few of the myriad of items on which members work in their spare time.

Pawn, knights, rooks, kings and queens covered the chess board as members of the Chess Club settled down to do some deep thinking. The club worked toward its goal of aiding students in the power of concentration as its members played in chess meets with other schools.

Experts state that to master chess one must indicate superior intelligence, remarkable patience, and unusual concentration.

The Chess Club was sponsored by Mr. Joseph Tansey.

CHESS CLUB OFFICERS—Sec. Craig Hill and Pres. David Masters play a game of chess at a meeting while Frank King, treas., Don Rowe, and Kurt Frazier, vice-pres., offer their opinions for each move the players make.

John Butler, drum major; Carol Linneman, head majorette; and Sandy Stout, feature twirler; led the band and majorettes through their many performances.

From the flute chair to the first solo trumpet everyone had a vital part in the band. Without the rhythms and beats of each instrument a band could not function.

Duties of the Warren band varied from dashing quickly onto the football field and performing a lively routine in the coldest weather to presenting winter concerts. Pep sessions and Easter sunrise services were also on the agenda for the band. Members trained and prepared throughout the fall and winter weeks for the district and state solo ensemble contest.

Majorettes played an important part in the life of a band, too. They added not only a variety of performances but color and zest. The girls marched at all home football games during the past grid season and presented a feature twirler at every basketball game.

The coming of spring brought the beginning of strenuous practice for the concert performances and commencement.

Every morning during homeroom period, strains of music flowed into the halls near the music room. Members of the orchestra were practicing hard toward the achievement of perfection.

This musical group was first started in 1925 and in the progressing years it has enlarged many times.

Under the direction of Mr. Bruce Fowler, the orchestra participated in the Christmas program and in several other convocations.

Looking toward the future, Mr. Fowler hopes to have special arrangements made to demonstrate the diversified talent of the orchestra members. He also has plans for starting an annual orchestra concert.

Instrumentalists Emphasized Solo, Group Work

ORCHESTRA—First row: Carol Christy, Phyllis Jones, Judy White, Mike Palmer, Nila Shrum, Donna Lagler, David Barron, Laurel Wendt, Sharon Uppfalt; second row: Sharon Hinchman, Pat Irwin, Mike Metzger, David Nysewander, Richard Delbauve, Terry Hobson, Frank Rush, Myron Hinderliter, Sue Stoner, Richard Hiatt, Eldon Bunn, John Smither, Mike Walsh, Margaret Ennis; third row: Mr. Bruce Fowler, director; Bill Hall, Tom Baldwin, Judy Amos.

Choral Groups Added Sparkle to Activities

WARRENAIRES — Members of this year's madrigals were first row: Carolyn Healy, Cheryl Brown, Barbara Platte, Carol Manthei, Linda Loman, Sharon Uppfalt, Janet McWhinney and Jeanne Bristley. Second row: Bill Wood, Ron Legan, Bruce Embrey, Dave Archer, Bud Vest, Jim Weber, Tom Jackson, and Jack Stiefel. During the past year the Warrenaires have participated in many activities not only in the school world but also in the community. Under the direction of Mr. Charles Moore this group represented Warren at dinners, luncheons, church programs, and also performed for radio and television audiences.

During the past year the musical groups of Warren participated in many activities, not only in school, but in the community as well.

For the choir it was a busy year—convocations, appearances on the Circle, and caroling in the halls at Christmas time. Music on the Circle drew attention of the passer-by and helped to spread good cheer during the holiday season.

This year's choir, composed of 48 voices, was directed by Mr. Charles Moore. At the public appearances the choir chose to wear the black choir robes with the additional trim of the surplice.

The choir is occupied during the spring when their talents are shown at the annual Choral Festival and Easter Sunrise Services.

The choir, composed of students in grades ten through twelve, gave each member a chance to pursue his musical interests.

CHOIR OFFICERS—Ed Meredith, pres.; and Kay Roberts, sec.-treas.; practice a duet as Graham Bateman accompanies them.

The chill fall night crackles

With the quarterback's sharp signals.

It's football!

While cross country boys are still covering long miles,

Countless basketballs arch toward Countless hoops.

The screaming of pep blocks subsides with spring, however.

Track shoes, tennis racquets, golf clubs and ball bats

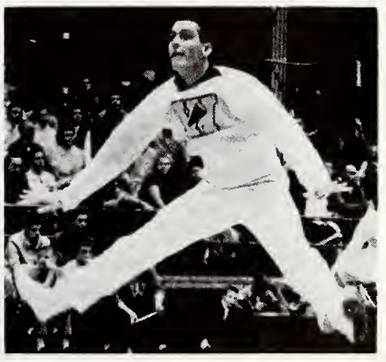
Are hurriedly found.

The sport cycle moves and changes constantly.

The foundations for healthy bodies, sportsmanlike attitudes

With Change Comes Challenge

In Athletics



And successful team records

Have been laid by the magnificent athletic plant

Of the new Warren Central.

The Old and New Met as Warriors

Head coach James Wallace has now completed his third year of coaching at Warren. Football has played a major role in his life. With the experience of playing football throughout his high school and college years, Mr. Wallace became head football and wrestling coach at Indiana Central College before he came to Warren in 1958. His profession not only includes the formation of a winning team but also building the strength and character of the boys with whom he works. During the past three years Mr. Wallace has built a football team which has had constant progression. He has also stimulated school spirit and created an interest in sports in general.

Head coach James Wallace, during a tense moment, makes an all-important decision. Assistant coaches Paul Conwell and Ronald Roach stand on the sidelines observing vital plays and offering veteran advice.

Brought a New School Spirit to Fans

Most valuable lineman Jim Weber and most valuable back Ted Crouch are a defiant combination which sparked many Warrior plays.

Jim Weber, team captain, displays his varsity football trophies. Jim was named most valuable defensive player and most valuable lineman for the 1960 season.

Jim Weber, senior center, is one of the most decorated gridders Warren has produced. For his brilliant play at linebacker, Jim was named the most valuable defensive player. To reward his offensive play, he received the most valuable lineman trophy. The team honored Jim by choosing him as their captain, and he was also chosen all-county center by two Indianapolis newspapers.

A common sight before all football games is the coach taping the ankles of players for their protection. Several of the boys look on as Coach Jim Wallace tapes quarterback Jack Stiefel's ankles in preparation for a varsity game.

Warren halfback Butch Bateman is about to break through a tough opponent line after end Millard Roberts has thrown a decisive block to set him free. Fullback Paul Settles trails for further protection.

Throughout the season, Warren football has been a precise mixture of the old and the new. With new uniforms, dressing rooms and school, games and practices were still at the old field. Junior fullback Paul Settles looks ahead at the uncompleted field to be in use next year.

Warren gridders reached new heights in striving to make their 1960 season successful. A new team spirit instilled a desire to win. Although the team had a 4-5 record, the desire was exemplified in their games.

The Warriors came back after a 15 yard setback in the Southport game to score on a 70 yard pass-run combination. Despite the play, lack of experience hurt, and the Warriors received the short end of a 24-9 score. After a 21-12 loss to Carmel, Warren claimed a 14-6 victory over Ben Davis with hard work and team spirit beginning to pay.

This spirit carried through the next game as the gridders trampled Martinsville 13-0. The battle with arch rival Lawrence left the Warriors in defeat 18-28. With a quick comeback, Warren ran over unprepared Greenfield 33-7, and they outclassed Madison Heights with a 33-6 victory.

The season's last game with city rival Howe wasn't decided until the fourth quarter when Howe scored 20 points in their 20-0 victory over Warren.

They Fought and Worked; They Won and Lost

During the game much of the strategy and many of the plays are planned on the sidelines. Coach Jim Wallace is about to send Tom Whitaker into the game with an offensive move.

The key to victory in all football games is defense. Pictured here are two of Warren's husky linemen, Jim Weber and John Abernathy, about to send one of their opponents to the ground.

One of the most important aspects of offensive play in football is the forward pass. Butch Bateman, one of Warren's outstanding backs, jumps to receive one of these passes for a long gain.

The least-known yet one of the most vital players in football is the blocker. Tom Whitaker is carrying the ball as Paul Settles and John Abernathy build a protective wall around him.

Reserves Built Through a Desire to Win

Winning three, tieing two, and losing two, Warren's reserve football team had a commendable record in their 1960 season. The main goal of these 28 boys was to gain the vital experience and background necessary for making next year's varsity team. The little Warriors are the future backbone of Warren's football eleven. They illustrate the spirit and the fight necessary for a winning team in seasons to come.

Reserve coaches Paul Conwell and Alan Miedema are instructing one of the reserve players.

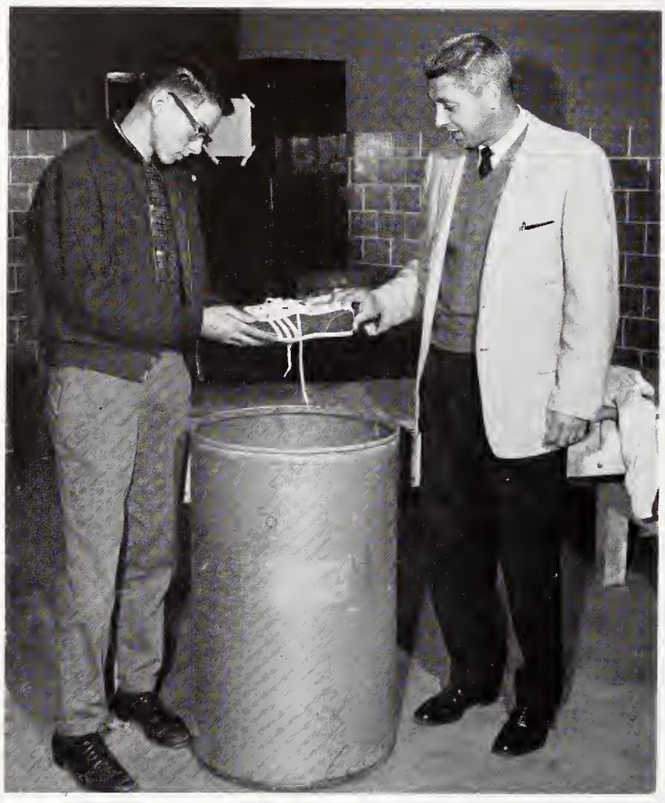
Reserve players Doug Marshall and Jim Luther inspecting equipment to be used next year on the varsity.

The main goal of reserve football is to prepare its boys through practice, instruction and game experience to become good varsity players. Varsity guard Jay Denny helps reserve tackle Roger Nold to perfect the proper stance, one of the basic fundamentals of good football.

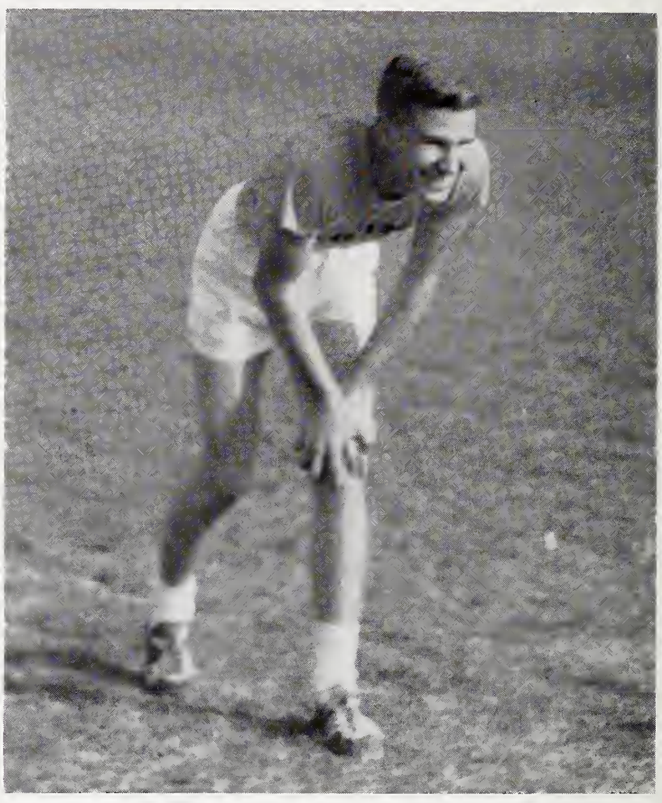
In return for the help and advice a reserve player receives from the varsity team, he does various jobs to show his appreciation and to back the varsity. Many exhausting hours are spent in scrimmage between the two teams. Reserves also did many of the unpleasant jobs. Carl Kassen, reserve quarterback, is shining the shoes of a varsity player before the game.

In the midst of an exciting football season, few people stop to recognize the boys who work behind the scenes and who receive little merit. Team managers do the "dirty work" for the football squad. These boys make certain there are clean uniforms, take care of the footballs and keep equipment in the best condition. Managers Lanny Green and Pat McKamey look on as student trainer Steve Miller shows them his first aid supplies.

New Coach Brought Winning Season



New coach Virgil Kirkpatrick shows manager Alan Earhart new cross country shoes. During his first year Kirkpatrick has produced a team with a commendable record.



Rayford Sissom placed first in almost every meet and first in two tournaments. He was the undisputed county champion.

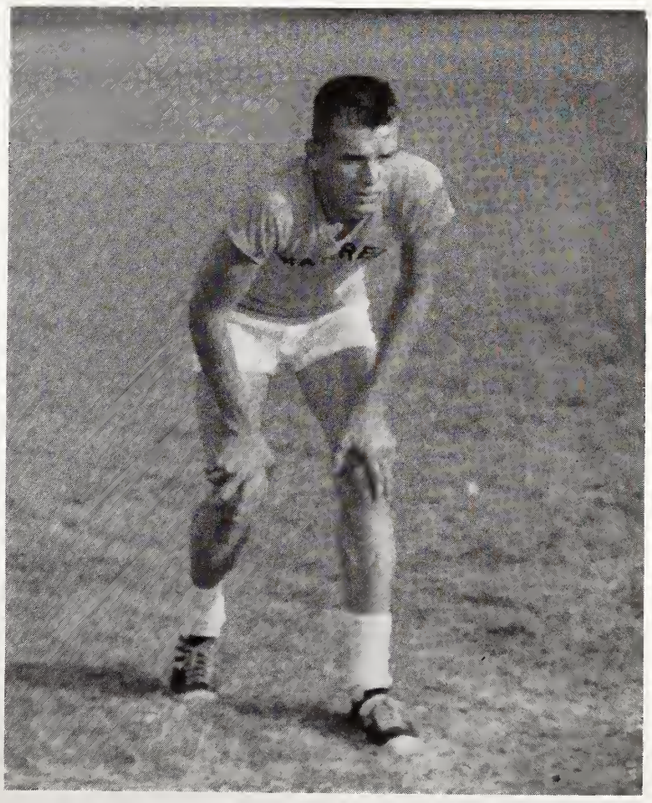
Under the direction of new coach Virgil Kirkpatrick, Warren's cross country pushed to new heights in their 1960 season. Through a continuing effort of drive and endurance, these cindermen gained a 7-1 season and placed high in all their tournaments. Led by senior Rayford Sissom, this year's cross country team was the best Warren has produced. Placing first in nine out of 15 starts, Rayford also placed first in the county meet.



One of the key runners of cross country was John Metzger. Johnny shows the starting position which he used to help push his team to a winning season.

Moments to

"Good luck, team, good luck . . .," is the familiar chant of cheerleaders as they direct the student body in cheering for their team.

Good sportsmanship is the goal of every school's athletic program, and cheerleaders help stimulate good sportsmanship.

The weather might be cold, the team might be losing, but for cheerleaders, discouragement only leads to fighting harder. These leaders in stirring school spirit help to unify the student body.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS — Judy Johnson, Linda Loman, Bud Vest, Suzy Sicking, Lynn Strane, Sharon Cahill, Diane Wallace and Susan Fink.

Warren's band, under the direction of Mr. Edgar Axsom, gives that extra boost of school spirit to team and fans. Majorettes Sharon Blume, Sandy Stout, Drum Major John Butler and JoAnne McClarren stand at rigid attention for the "Star Spangled Banner."

Remember . . . Fans Anxiously Awaited Crowning

One of the most exciting highlights of homecoming is the selecting and crowning of the queen. Two representatives from each class were nominated for this honor. Pat Vance (center) reigned as queen with members of her court Susan Fink, Judy Johnson, Diane Wallace, Lynn Strane and Donna Fuson.

The gun fires ending the first half and the teams leave the field. The crowd stands to get a glimpse of the queen candidates as they round the corner in the convertibles. With cars approaching, fans begin to buzz among themselves. As the girls step out of the cars into the frosty air, silence spreads over the crowd. Alumni remember their high school days and excitement is keen. And then . . . the winner!

The queen, bubbling over with happiness, symbolizes the spirit of homecoming night. Sitting in her chair of honor, she and her court remain to enjoy the second half of the game. After the game, a dance is given in her honor.

The field is bare within minutes after the game. The crowds are gone and all is quiet. The night is over, but the memory lingers.

The big moment finally arrives and the tension is suddenly relieved. All eyes fall on the new queen. Dale Totten escorts Pat as last year's queen, Sandi Elliott, crowns her.

Coach Kirkpatrick Led Warriors in Basketball

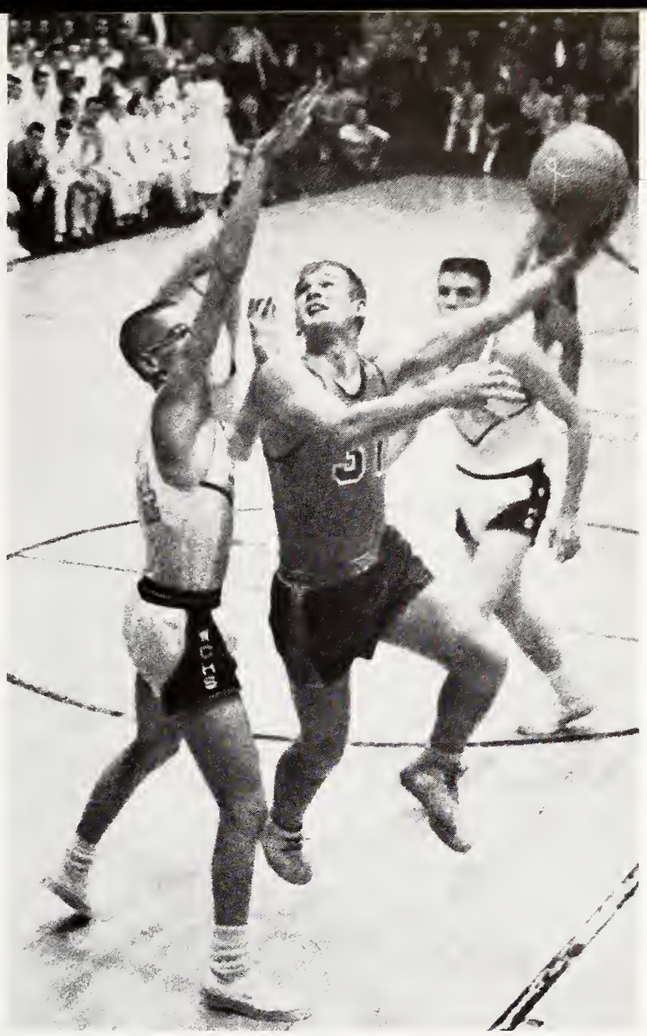
New basketball coaches Virgil Kirkpatrick and Paul Conwell discuss with the team last minute plans at one of their practice sessions after school.

Warren not only gained a new school, but it also gained a new coaching staff. New varsity basketball coach Virgil Kirkpatrick came to Warren from Bluffton High School.

Coach Kirkpatrick, graduate of Ball State, has participated in basketball most of his life. He began his career of basketball at Fairmount High School where he played on the team all four years. He continued as a member of the Ball State basketball team, and went on to coach at Bluffton High School.

Gaining two regional champions, his team had a 60-31 record. During his last year there (1960) his team went to the final game of the semi-state, but was defeated by Ft. Wayne Central.

Defense is the essence of good basketball. Jerry Yocum, senior forward, attempts a steal during a crucial play in the Warren-Broad Ripple game.



Dick Kline, senior forward, guards an opposing player from the Triton team. Teammates Phil Marshall and Ed Meredith stand by to move when the time is right.

Jerry Yocum, senior forward, jumps for the ball in an exciting moment of the Warren-Triton game.

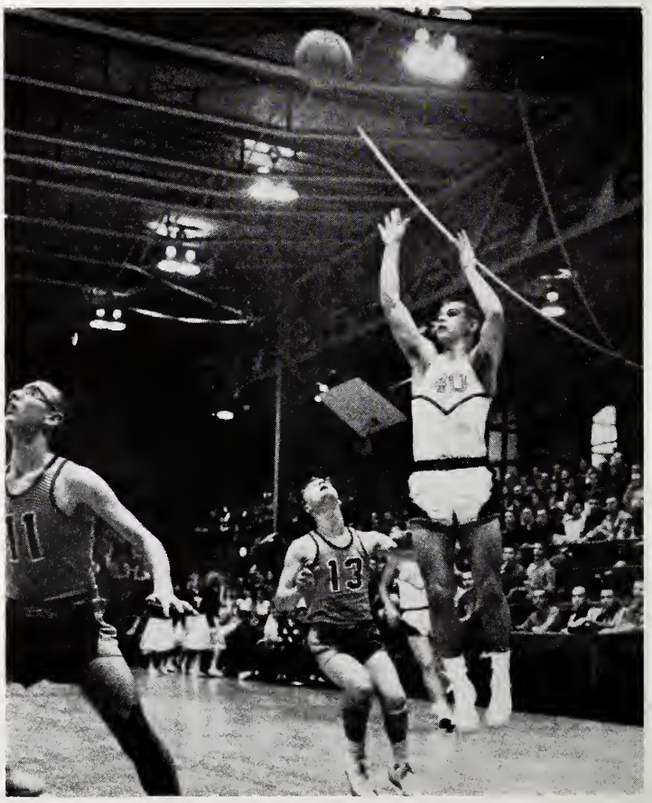
As football season dwindles, the tide suddenly turned to basketball. Great anticipation went along with the first game for the team, the coach, and the fans. For sometime previous, the team had burned the hardwood in practicing for the season ahead. Then the moment finally arrived and the first game of the season began.

At the old Warren gym, Coach Virgil Kirkpatrick instilled the last minute fight in the boys to win that game. The Triton team warmed up, but not quite to the heat of the Warriors, and the Warriors gained their first victory with a 47-32 margin. The team did experience some growing pains through the season with a 9-10 loss.

With the most exciting time of basketball came the sectionals. The Warriors fought one of the highest rated teams in the state, Cathedral. Although they lost the game, the team had gained a moral victory. Their season was over. They had met their competition through a season of hard work.

The old gym is quiet now, no team, no crowds; and the gym at new Warren is waiting for the Warriors' next season.



Form is one of the most important factors in the art of shooting a basketball. The jump shot is considered one of the most deadly as well as the most skillful of all shots. Jerry Yocum shows both features as he executes a jump shot.

Often a crucial point of the game is the tip off to decide which team will get control of the ball during the first few seconds of the game. Bob Cohoon outjumps Zionsville competitors to get control of the tip. The Warriors were victorious in the game with a score of 74-64.

With the change in schools came a new challenge to the reserve basketball team. To instill the winning incentive in these boys was new coach Mr. Paul Conwell, a recent graduate of Purdue. With a victorious 16-4 season, the little Warriors went to the top by winning the reserve county tourney. To achieve this championship, they had to first play in a preliminary game, in which they defeated North Central. Having lost to Ben Davis during the season, the reserves made a triumphant comeback to defeat them with a score of 58 to 36 in the final game of the tourney.

As most reserve players, these boys gained little recognition in school life. They played to gain the necessary experience to be on the varsity team next year. They had the coach and the incentive to win. They fought hard to win, and they did. With attitude and skill they worked together as only a winning team will.

League A intramural champions for 1960-61 were the Varsity Rejex. Members of the team were Dave Davis, Jack Stiefel, Ted Crouch, Bill Southern, Chuck Haynes, Jay Denney, Dale Totten and Dick Story.

Manager Jeri Porter displays her favorite bowling technique as other team members look on.

The largest of all participation sports was boys' intramural basketball. With the loss of freshmen in the change of schools, a new program had to be devised. Three new leagues were developed, "A" for seniors, "B" for juniors and "C" for sophomores.

Mr. Alan Miedema and Mr. Donald Foreman were sponsors for the boys to play on Monday nights. Teams played mostly within their own leagues, and out of 20 teams, three emerged as winners. Varsity Rejex took the "A" League, Screwdrivers won the "B" championship, and sophomore winners were the Raiders.

Warren gave the feminine population a chance to participate in sports, too. The Girls' Athletic Association provided healthful and fun-filled recreation for the athletic-minded girl. Girls had the opportunity to improve their skills in swimming, archery, bowling, basketball and softball.

Mrs. Rosalind White, girls' gym teacher at Woodview, sponsored this active group.

James Wallace, in his third year of coaching at Warren, has produced a championship wrestling team. The team entered the county tourney undefeated and emerged with the title for 1961. Warren had three individual county champions: Dick Leming, Ray Stafford and Sherman Merriman. This year the Warren wrestling squad defeated all opponents except the team from Cathedral.

Through fight and desire of the wrestlers, the sport is gaining fame with the spectators. Warren was well represented by parents of wrestlers and by students themselves. As Warren's rugged Coach Wallace often stresses, "when the going gets tough, the tough get going."

Ben Life shows Jim Leming his new jacket. To remind boys of their winning the county championship, they received Warren Central jackets.

Dave Norton, Sherman Merriman and Ray Stafford demonstrate different wrestling positions as they prepare for a hold.

Coach Wallace jumps from the bench as one of his men scores points for the Warrior's wrestling cause. Alan Earhart, student manager, urges the grappler on.

Louie Rowland demonstrates one of his wrestling holds to an eighth grader of Woodview Junior High. This was the first year of wrestling at the junior high school preparing younger boys for high school wrestling.

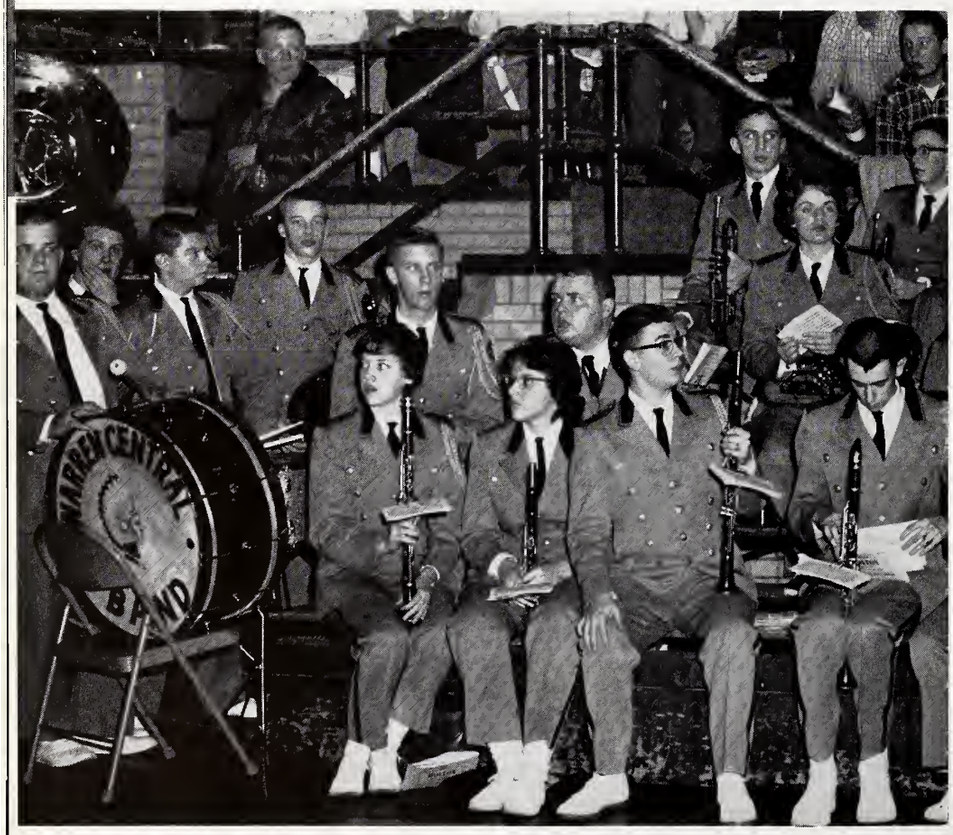
Cheerleaders

Cheers echoed through the empty halls in the late afternoon as reserve and varsity and basketball cheerleaders practiced. Football season or basketball season—the time made no difference to Judy Johnson, Bud Vest, Linda Loman, Lynn Strane, Diane Wallace, Suzy Sicking, Sharon Cahill, Donna Fuson and Susan Fink. Their work continued from August until February.

Mrs. Betty DeVol, in addition to coaching the group, arranged for their participation in workshops and camps throughout the state.

Try-outs in the spring spotlighted the importance of cheerleaders as aspirants worked and practiced for days before the final show of their talent before the Student Council.

Only varsity yell leaders for 1961-62 were chosen this spring because freshmen would be eligible for the reserves squad.



Representing the varsity basketball squad are varsity cheerleaders Judy Johnson, Suzy Sicking, Bud Vest, Linda Loman and Lynn Strane.

Between rousing songs, the pep band relaxes and checks music for the next number. Hand motions for cheer group members were planned to the band's beat.

Cheering the Little Warriors on to victory were reserve cheerleaders Diane Wallace, Susan Fink, Sharon Cahill and Donna Fuson.

Boosted Team Spirit, Morale

Janice Croucher displays typical emotions as she is told that she has been elected Winter Sports Queen. Paula Brown, Diane Wallace, Susan Fink and Lynn Strane share the prized moment.

Last year's queen Marlene Settles crowned Janice. Members of the royal court were Diane Wallace, Judy Johnson, Lynn Strane, Queen Jan, Susan Fink and Paula Brown. The girls remained to watch the second half of the Warren-Manual game.

Mr. Virgil Kirkpatrick and Mr. James Wallace, track coaches, confer with Mr. Alan Miedema, tennis mentor, on the schedule for their spring sports.

Tim Marsh contemplates his tennis racquet while he waits for the warm weather to come. This year's tennis team was the first in Warren history.

GOLF TEAM—The first warm day of spring brought Jack Scoggan, Dave Stoner, Tom Lowe and Tom Falconbury to the golf course to practice for the matches that provided both a hobby and a sports letter.

Golf coach, Mr. Ronald Roach instructs Richie Martin on the proper stance. Mr. Roach guided the five linksmen in after school practice sessions.

BASEBALL TEAM — Jack Stiefel, Dick Story, Jerry Yocum, Denny Lawless, Myron Hinderliter, Larry Franke, Jim Weber, Terry Hobson and Mr. Donald Foreman meet after school for baseball practice. The boys worked in sweat clothes while waiting the spring to bring sunshine and warmth.

Foreman Appointed Baseball Coach

When the snows melted and the spring breezes begin to blow, boys' minds wandered from the classroom and gym activities to the outdoors and spring sports.

Warren's cindermen, however, had stretched their legs even before winter left. Coach Virgil Kirkpatrick had his team in full stride. The grass turned green on the golf course, and Coach Ronald Roach and his golf team broke out the clubs to tee off. Mr. Donald Foreman, college batting champion from I. U., waited for the diamonds to dry to lead his baseball boys onto the field.

Other significant changes took place, too. Mr. Alan Miedema viewed the new tennis courts, called for boys interested in that sport, and formed Warren's first tennis team.

TRACK TEAM—Rayford Sissom, Eddie Meredith, Ron Althardt, Dale Earhart and Dick Leming prepare for practice runs before the first track meet. These boys earned points as trackmen last year.

To inspire his students to give their best,

To help youth reach its limitless potential through education.

Austin E. Walker

SUPERINTENDENT AUSTIN E. WALKER'S responsibilities vary from selecting the staff and supervising the completion of the new high school to preparing the school's budget and expenditures.

Mr. Walker graduated from the former Central Normal College and began his teaching career as coach and Latin teacher. He served six and a half years in the army during World War II, and then he returned to education.

He had served as principal of two schools before being promoted to superintendent of Crown Point schools. In 1957 Mr. Walker became the first superintendent of the Metropolitan School District of Warren Township.

Edward H. Cuddy

PRINCIPAL EDWARD H. CUDDY is head of the school's administrative staff. His duties include staff supervision, administration of general school affairs, curriculum leadership, and operating the school program efficiently.

Mr. Cuddy received his A.B. degree from Franklin College and his M.S. from Indiana University. While completing courses for his Doctor of Education degree, he attended California State and Indiana.

Coming here from Bloomington where he served as vice-principal until 1957, Mr. Cuddy is Warren's third principal.

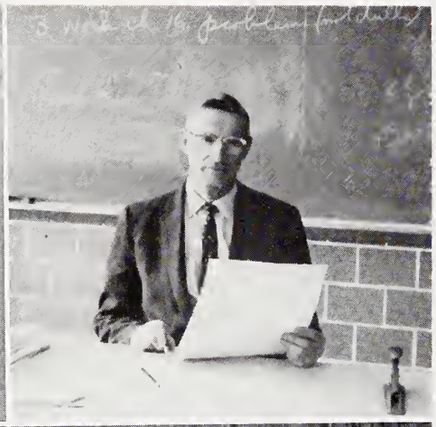
Times change, and we change with them...Cellarius

The beginning of the new school year brings immediate problems to MR. OBERT PIETY, vice-principal. Not only is he responsible for students' class scheduling and assistants, but also acts as co-sponsor of Student Council.

Co-sponsoring the Student Council, operating the Federal Lunch Program and the cafeteria, and acting as dean of girls occupies the school days of MRS. MAUDE SIEBERT. Mrs. Siebert is also activities coordinator and counsellor.

MR. WENDELL ROBERTS' position as dean of boys includes supervision of boys' discipline and attendance. He directs lunchroom activities and organization of student receptionists.

MR. WILLIAM GLESING, athletic director, is also senior class counsellor and sponsor of Lettermen's Club. His busy schedule includes advising seniors concerning their plans, and he is faculty sponsor for Senior Council.



MR. EDGAR AXSOM has busy days in Warren Township directing the band at Warren and handling instrumental music at grade schools. The pep band and the majorettes are also handled by Mr. Axsom.

MR. EDWARD BALDWIN instructs his students in bookkeeping, accounting and business mathematics. He is also interested in national economy and the stock market.

MRS. LINDA BARNES instructs her pupils in the field of home economics with the emphasis on clothing. She also sponsors the Future Homemakers of America to whom she demonstrated various phases of homemaking.

MR. JOHN BOWSER taught plane geometry in his first year at Warren. He spends his spare time playing baseball, his favorite sport. Mr. Bowser plays frequently and coaches a boys softball team.

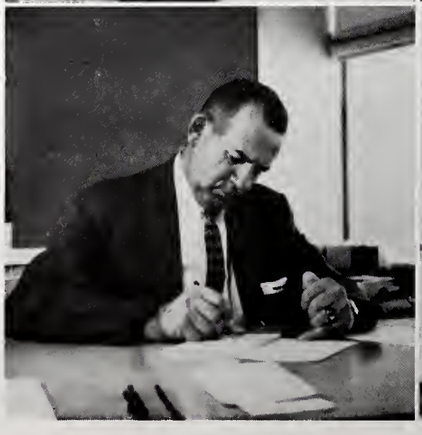
I never in my life did hear a challenge urg'd

MRS. SYLVIA BUTLER specialized in the field of journalism. She teaches beginning and advanced journalism, handles the paper and the yearbook staffs, and is responsible for News Bureau. In addition Mrs. Butler sponsors Quill and Scroll.

MRS. SUZANNE CAREY instructs both English and speech. She sponsors the Dramatic Club and works with students on various productions including programs for the monthly meeting of the club.

MR. RAY CLARK'S primary interest is in the field of mathematics. He teaches advanced algebra and senior mathematics, the most advanced course. One of his other jobs is lunchroom supervision.

MR. PAUL CONWELL teaches two science courses—biology and health and safety. He is reserve basketball coach as well as assistant football and baseball coach.



MR. ROBERT COOKSEY is drafting instructor. He specializes in mechanical and machine drawing. Mr. Cooksey sponsors the activities of Beta Hi-Y, and he spends his spare time working on mechanical designing.

MR. GENE CROSIER instructs boys in the intricacies of the machine shop, and works with such machines as the Sheldon milling machine. In connection with his teaching, he sponsors the Industrial Arts Club.

MRS. BETTY DeVOL'S main interests lie in the fields of literature and grammar. She is also responsible for the cheerleaders and their pep sessions which involved afternoon and evening rehearsals during football and basketball seasons.

MRS. LOURENE DODSON, head of the language department, is Warren's "profesora de Espanol." Leaving her Spanish duties, she enjoys a hobby of needlework at home. Mrs. Dodson will oversee the language laboratory when it is in use.

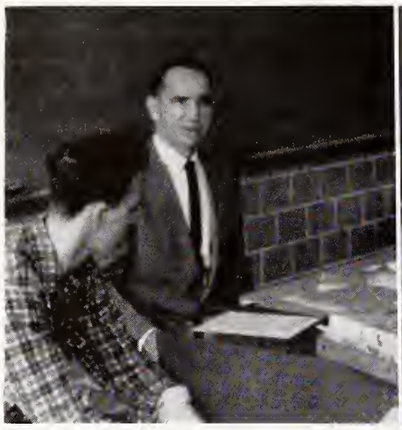
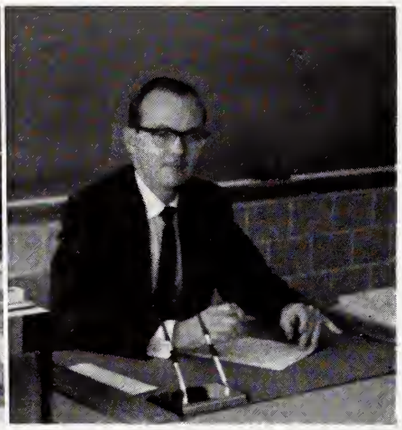
MISS JULIA FAUCETT saw her art department evolve into one which could serve students with interests in all phases of art. Miss Faucett worked with commercial art, ceramics and crafts as well as the beginning and advanced classes.

MR. BRUCE FOWLER directed Warren orchestra members in the basic principles of string instruments and sight reading. Mr. Fowler has played with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, and he is a graduate of Warren.

MRS. MARY RUTH FOWLER, teacher of English and sponsor of Warrenettes Club, enjoys listening to the family's hi-fi during a rare leisure moment at home. Her vast record collection includes literature albums which she uses in her classes.

MR. DAVID FOREMAN teaches social studies and took an active part in the sports activity of Warren. He is head baseball coach and assists with the intramural program.





MR. CLIFFORD GATES is one of the United States history and family living teachers. He sponsors the junior class and spends much of his time in guidance of eleventh grade pupils.

MR. BASIL GRAY heads the English department, and he teaches both junior and senior English classes. Mr. Gray's experience includes assignments in all parts of the continental United States.

MRS. LOLA HANGER instructs the many students enrolled in beginning typing. She, along with other members of the department, aids in developing skills useful to both the college-bound and the career-minded student.

MR. VONN HAYES teaches chemistry and all classes in agrciulture. He sponsors the Future Farmers of America and is a 4-H leader in Warren Township. What leisure time Mr. Hayes has is spent in his wookworking area at home.

MISS LOKILE HICKS, instructor of advanced typing and shorthand, includes in her schedule the teaching of such office machines as the electric typewriter. She is faculty leader of Future Business Leaders of America.

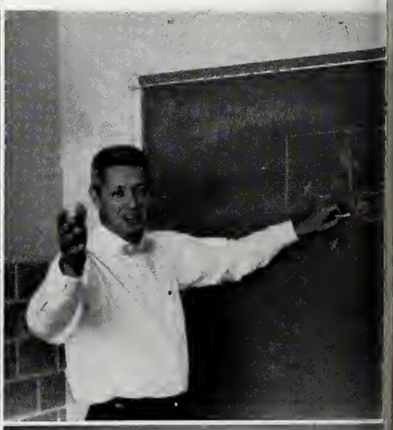
MR. VIRGIL KIRKPATRICK divides his time between the English department and the basketball court where he is head coach. He co-sponsors the Lettermen's Club, and he is also head track mentor.

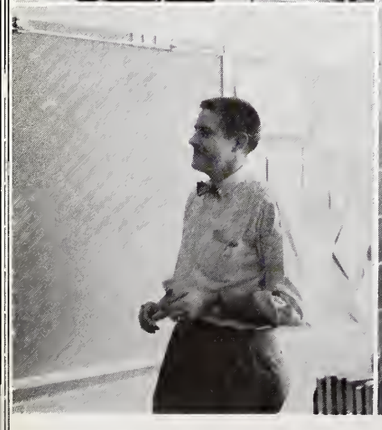
MR. ROBERT LEDGER, head of the mathematics segment of the faculty, teaches trigonometry and solid geometry to upperclassmen. In conjunction with his classroom duties, he sponsors the math club, Mu Alpha Theta.

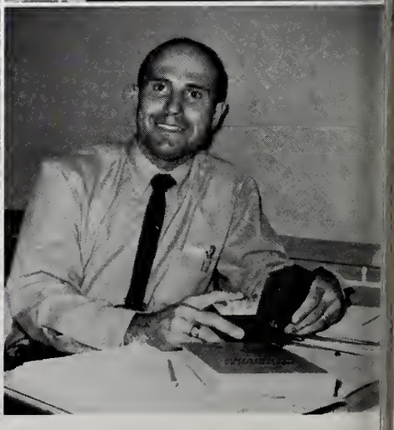
MRS. HARRIETT McGUIRE is responsible for the knowledge gained by senior grammar and literature students. Mrs. McGuire's special interests center on the Elizabethan literary period and preparation of pupils for college.

MRS. CLARICE MEANS is the guidance counsellor for the sophomore class as well as the teacher for the senior course in family living. Mrs. Means' outside activities include 4-H and church work.

MR. ALAN MIEDEMA, a graduate of Warren, is responsible for the instruction in drivers education, an assignment he shares with Mr. Nolte. Mr. Miedema sponsors the Drivers Club and assists with intramural basketball.







MR. MAX MIESE, member of the science department, specializes in practical science. He, as sponsor of the Science Club, is also responsible for the activities of that group. Away from Warren, Mr. Meise is an active member of National Guard.

MRS. CAROL MONTGOMERY is not only assistant dean of girls in charge of attendance, but also an English teacher for the tenth and eleventh grades. Mrs. Montgomery also sponsors Tri Hi-Y, service club for girls.

MR. CHARLES MOORE teaches all vocal music in the senior high school and sponsors such performing groups as Warrenaires, Treble Tones, choir and Warren Men. Mr. Moore is working on his doctor of music degree.

MRS. HELEN MOORE is supervisor of the new developmental reading program. Her goals are to increase the reading speed and comprehension of all students enrolled in high school. All Warrenites will have the benefits of this plan.

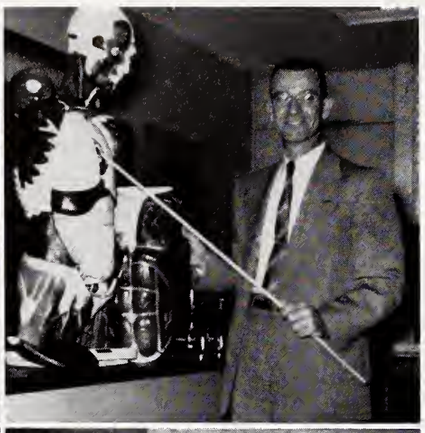
Change, indeed, is painful; yet ever needful . . .

MR. HOWARD NOE, long-time member of the science department faculty, instructs his classes in the fundamentals of chemistry in preparation for careers and college.

MR. HERMAN NOLTE, in addition to heading the drivers education course, assists administration and students in the supervision of the parking area. Mr. Nolte's home interests include yard work after school hours.

MR. PAUL PARKISON teaches typing and bookkeeping, and he is the co-sponsor of the Hi-C Bible Club. His extra-curricular activities involve sports of all kinds, particularly fishing.

MRS. ITA RICHARDSON is responsible for the smooth functioning of the home economics department. Her specific teaching field involves food preparation. Mrs. Richardson is another faculty member in 4-H work.



MR. RONALD ROACH teaches American government, coaches the golf team, assists with the varsity football squad, and sponsors the Pep Block. His spare time is spent on the golf course.

MR. DONALD SAYLOR, science department chairman, utilizes the many visual aids available in his biology room. Mr. Saylor is the faculty adviser of the Future Teachers of America club, and he arranges cadet teaching schedules.

MR. DAVID SAUSSER helps his students with the facts and dates of United States history. He frequently added campaign literature to his bulletin board during the Presidential campaign. Co-sponsoring the History Club is one of his activities.

MRS. OZELLA SCHLOSSER is a member of the social studies faculty, and she works with seniors in her American government classes. Mrs. Schlosser planned the mock election, and she also sponsors the Junior Red Cross.

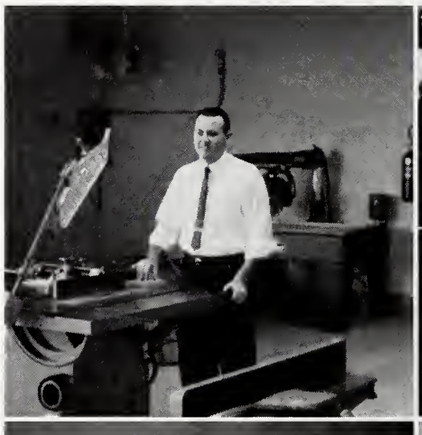
Things do change, creeds, philosophies

MR. LARRY SMITH instructs boys in architectural drafting, beginning wood shop and advanced wood shop. Boys Pep Block also depends on Mr. Smith for faculty leadership.

MR. CLYDE SPEARS is head of the industrial arts department, and he teaches beginning and advanced printing. With such new equipment as the linotype machine, Mr. Spears will soon handle printing for the entire township.

MR. ROLLAND SPRUNGER has helped Warren students in classes ranging from German to science during his years at Warren. Students now enrolled in Mr. Sprunger's classes are receiving the benefits of his knowledge in physics and practical science.

MISS BETTY STEPHENS supervises classes in French, English grammar and American literature, and she is also sponsor of the French Club. Miss Stephens, who has taught in Africa, has an extensive collection of native musical instruments.



MRS. VERNA SYKES is a member of the English staff, and she conducts junior literature and grammar classes. Mrs. Sykes' outside interests include the Booth Tarkington Civic Theater in which she actively participates.

MR. JOSEPH TANSEY discussess theorems and equations in his plane geometry and algebra classes available to sophomores and juniors. Mr. Tansey is the teacher sponsor of the Chess Club, a relatively new organization.

MR. LEON THOMPSON handles all first and second year Latin classes whose activities include the annual Slave Sale and the Trip Through Hades. He is also faculty advisor to the Senior Honor Society.

MR. CHARLES TREES is newly-appointed chairman of the social studies department. He concentrates in his class work on teaching man's achievements and world events in world history and international relations studies.

pictures exchanged between friends

The first sleepy student entered Warren's doors, and another school day began. Some of the most memorable moments of high school occurred before the ringing of the first class bell.

Although seniors missed walking around the old Warren's library, acceptable substitutes were found. The rotunda and upper and lower halls were always overflowing with pupils busy with the small talk of teenagers.

At 8:15 students scattered to their homerooms for daily devotions which provided spiritual guidance for students and faculty. Information concerning club meetings, coming games and all school activities was related by Bob Smith's reading of the bulletin. Following announcements, Warrenites left for meetings or they completed the homework forgotten the night before.

Suddenly, after what seemed only minutes, the buzzing study and activity period ended, and students began their routine class schedules.

Ten "Outstanding Seniors" were chosen by the senior class, and another new tradition came to new Warren. Chosen on a basis of scholarship, leadership and service, Tom Jackson and Sandie Cole were among the seniors named by their classmates.

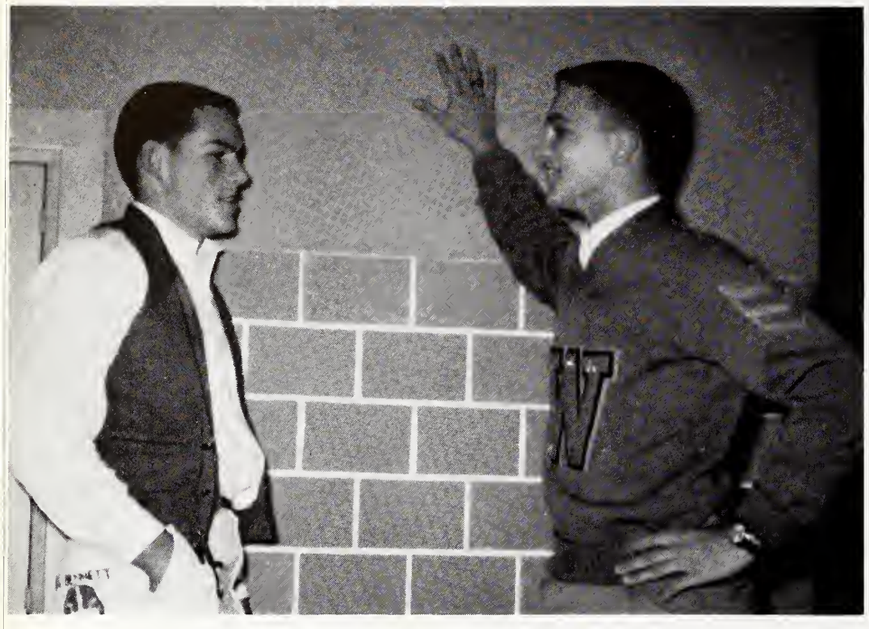
Lavender and white decided upon as class colors - -



Ted Crouch and Jack Stiefel climaxed their four years of high school by being chosen as "Outstanding Seniors." Both boys have played active roles in athletics, extracurricular duties and student government.

Even with a new building and an opportunity to establish new traditions, this year's senior class retained many customs of old Warren. Traditionally, they chose class colors, selected a theme for graduation, and wore senior cords.

Early in the fall seniors voted lavendar and white for their class colors. Decorations for the Senior Prom, graduation dance and other activities centered around these hues.

Senior colors were used in decorating class cords. Both boys and girls began plotting what sayings and drawings they would create on their cords. Traditional sayings such as "Warren Central," "Warriors," or "Seniors" were combined with all the new and unusual expressions to make each skirt and pair of trousers definitely an individual effort.

Senior cords and colors and traditions were only a fragment of that final high school year—a time so well remembered.

added ideas helped to finance prom

Seniors' moods changed quickly from the romantic anticipation of the prom to the practical financing of their activities.

The sale of fruit cakes during their junior year had netted enough money to pay for the junior prom with a sizeable fund carried into the senior year. A percentage of money received from the sale of senior rings also helped swell the class treasury.

Other projects undertaken by the graduating class included paper sales (in rain and sun!) the hawking of ball point pens to any and all interested customers, the sharing with the juniors of profits from license plates, and a last minute campaigning to sell senior pins.

Formal dinner-dances, baccalaureate decorations and commencement arrangements all required money. The class of 1961 was successful in the planning, arranging and financing of all its activities. Both class leaders and class members could review the year's ventures with satisfaction.

"Outstanding Seniors" George McLean and Judy Johnson have served in executive positions during their high school days. George was senior class president, and Judy was a varsity cheerleader for two years.

Upperclassmen took scholarship qualifying tests...

Bill Southern confers with Mr. William Glesing, senior sponsor. Bill, another "Outstanding Senior," served as junior class president last year and began projects which culminated in the senior prom and commencement.

With the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" and the tossing of tassels, seniors realized that their tomorrow had arrived.

Many graduates left the halls of Warren to enter the business world. Skills learned in high school aided them in such careers as secretarial work and mechanics.

Over 50 percent of the 1961 graduating class planned to enter college in September. Months of reading catalogs and filling out applications were rewarded with acceptance letters and the thrill of new challenges.

The fall of 1961 will see Warren graduates scattered throughout the United States. Seniors chose colleges as far away as Hawaii and Colorado, and as near as Butler and Indiana Central.

The value of a human being to his world depends upon his desire and the thoroughness of his education. The influence of Warren Central upon her graduates will not be understood until each student can objectively reflect upon these formative years.

eagerly looked forward to graduation

When the bell rang on May 26 at 3:30 p. m., seniors completed their final exam and brought to an end their high school days. Using the traditional pennies, seniors paid for their lunches with mixed emotions.

The senior week that followed provided a variety of activities for members of the class of 1961. Nostalgic memories lingered after the June 2 prom dinner-dance as well as the after-prom parties and picnics which followed.

The religious aspect of graduation activities was highlighted on June 4 as seniors with their parents and friends entered the C. E. Eash auditorium for the baccalaureate service.

Commencement exercises and the graduation dance at the Miramar Club brought to a close the challenge of high school living and gave the new graduates a glimpse of the changes to come in their adult worlds.

Ron Althardt, John Abernathy and Stan Martin were also chosen by class members as "Outstanding Seniors" in the fall. These boys have served their school and community through the Y. M. C. A., churches and their youth groups.

Either you are overwhelmed

By your first year in high school,

Or you're anxiously looking forward to next year

As your last.

You're an underclassman.

Sophomore or junior, boy or girl

Sometimes for you the days lag, or they flash by

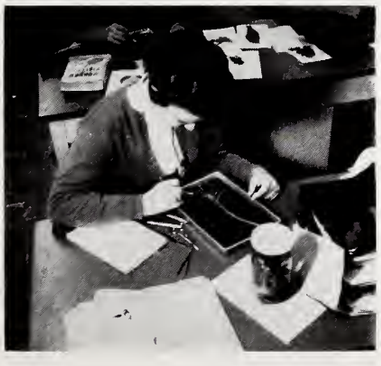
Your exciting hours tumbling over each other

In their hurry to pass.

The change has not hampered your enjoyment of life.

With Change Comes Challenge

To Underclassmen



But, rather, the new Warren Central

Has challenged you to reach your own heights

In accomplishment and maturity.
